White House Gets Local Pumpkin

Pumpkins generated a lot of excitement this week at Stauffer Farms in Columbia. Jim Stauffer, fruit and produce seller, shipped a 320-pound pumpkin to the White House. This was the fourth year Stauffer was asked to supply the White House pumpkin. The pumpkin was grown in the backyard of Tammy and John Williams of Fawn Grove. Jim, seated in wagon, and his dad Jay grow 300 acres of produce and contract from other farmers to supply Baltimore-Washington markets with fresh produce. Photo by Lou Ann Good.

Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board Approves 40-Cent Increase

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) on Tuesday announced it has approved a 40-cent increase in its Class I minimum over-order premium, effective Nov. 1.

The total PMMB over-order premium is to be $1.20 per hundred pounds (cwt.) of Class I milk, and is to remain until the end of April 1998.

The over-order premium is an amount that Pennsylvania dairy processors must pay Pennsylvania dairy farmers, on top of the federally set minimum price, for using and selling that milk as drinking milk (Class I).

The PMMB over-order premium has been 80 cents per hundredweight (cwt.) since April 1996.

It was due to drop to 50 cents per cwt. on May 1, where it has been for some time.

But the PMMB held a hearing in early April to gather testimony, and followed up with retaining the 30-cents through April 1998.

At the time, the dairy industry experienced an unexpected $4-drop in the price of milk, officially due to low cheese prices, and extraordinarily high feed prices.

In late September, State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. initiated a request of the PMMB to hold a hearing to consider the over-order premium in light of the current dairy price situation.

The PMMB held that hearing Oct. 10 and gathered testimony.

Then, this week, the board met Tuesday in a special Sunshine meeting. (A state law that defines the public's access to the dealings of government is called the Sunshine law.)

After considering the testimony, they unanimously approved increasing the over-order premium by 40 cents, by amending its previous order.

Set Clocks Back Tonight

It's time to change from Daylight Saving Time back to Eastern Standard Time. The official time we "fall back" one hour is at 2 a.m. Sunday morning, Oct. 26. To get that extra hour of sleep, turn the blocks back one hour before you go to bed Saturday night. Animal feeding and milking schedules also need to be adjusted accordingly.

Dairylea Cooperative Reviews Year of Growth

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. celebrated another year of substantial growth and improved financial position at its 1997 Annual Meeting held October 14 and 15 in Liverpool, N.Y.

During his presentation, Dairylea Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith reported that the Cooperative had an annual profit of $1.4 million dollars, increasing 32 percent from the previous year. Additionally, sales continued trekking upward to almost $699 million, increasing 17.6 percent, continuing the growth pattern of recent years. Premiums paid to members, over the blend price, totaled close to $15.6 million, up 29 percent from the previous year. Equity in the Cooperative grew over $1 million dollars, or 9.3 percent.

"For the last eight years, our milk marketings have grown more than 10 percent each year. This year, we expect milk marketing volumes to increase again. This growth, combined with other factors across the United States, will likely find Dairylea ranked as the seventh largest dairy cooperative in the United States," announced Smith.

More than 750 member-farmers and industry guests attended the two-day event, which included Smith's presentation and an annual address by Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford.

Smith also reviewed a myriad of Dairylea's new projects and activities that fulfilled its mission statement of maximizing net returns at the farm through effective milk marketing and providing valuable services and programs.

In outlining the Cooperative's commitment for the coming year, Smith said, "We will relentlessly innovate, upgrade, and improve our performance and service to our members by 1. enhancing price and reducing costs; 2. doggedly supporting and promoting the Dairy Compact in our region, as well as pursuing all other avenues that are rational to enhance price at the farm; 3. intensifying our efforts to reduce costs at the farm to improve cash flow for farmer members."

In delivering his annual address

Lancaster Farmland Trust Launches Funding Campaign

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Honorary Chairman Noah W. Kreider, Jr. launched Lancaster Farmland Trust's 1997-98 Annual Funding Campaign to save Lancaster County farms. This week Kreider gave Board of Trustees President Phyllis C. Whitesell an envelope containing $30,000 in donations already received at an Amish preserved farm, located just North of Greenfield Industrial Park.

Kreider, a Manheim area farmer and businessman who has preserved several farms himself said, "The work of Lancaster Farmland Trust is crucial to ensure that farming remains economically viable for today and for future generations."

Graziers Featured

In the next issue of Lancaster Farming (Nov. 1) we include Foraging Around, a special section dedicated to the forage grower and grazier, with information supplied by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council (PFGC).

Foraging Around is published four times per year. Look for an interview with a producer who makes use of hay drying technologies, sound advice on pasture and forage management from producers throughout the state, and management tips from cooperative extension. Also included will be information on the state grazing conference, a message from the PFGC president, news of upcoming meetings, research data, and advertising information.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Wheat bids closed mixed after a higher opening. Corn and soybean bids continued to climb higher on fund buying and good overnight corn export sales. Wheat mixed. Corn 5 to 11 cents higher. Sorghum 11 to 15 cents higher. Soybeans 1 to 6 cents higher. Wheat bids received some weakness due to good crop conditions and slow export sales. USDA has rated the US winter wheat crop as 70 percent in good condition, 26 percent fair and 4 percent poor to very poor. In the key hard red winter wheat producing state of Kansas, the crop was rated 80 percent good to excellent, 19 percent fair and 1 percent poor to very poor. Soft wheat showed some strength on overnight export demand. Corn and soybean bids climbed higher again due to some fund buying on the board and carryover strength from Tuesday's higher close. Good export demand for corn overnight offered additional support to bids. Continued harvest pressure, however, limited gains in corn and soybeans.

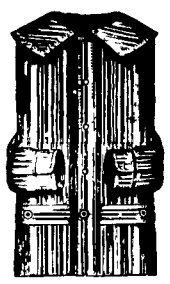
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

OCT. 27-NOV. 2, 1997

ALL HALLOWS EVE, OCTOBER 31.

WINTER FLANNELS



The first flannel underwear was used in Boston by Lord Percy's regiment (who must have appreciated it greatly!) when they were encamped on the common in October of 1774. There was barely enough flannel cloth in the town for that one regiment. Flannels came to be almost synonymous with long underwear, thanks to the severity of New England winters. Union suits followed shortly, being the same idea in a united shirt and pants. These days, flannel is more often seen around town as a plaid or striped shirt.

Stick to your winter flannels until your flannels stick to you.

TIP OF THE WEEK

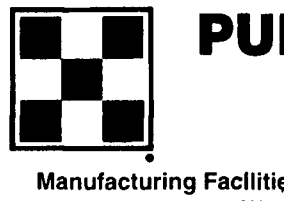
Recycle old flannels into shoe-shine rags or dust cloths.

RED-FLANNEL HASH

2 cups cooked, diced corned beef
2 cups boiled, diced potatoes
1 cup cooked, diced beets
3 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup milk
salt and pepper, to taste

Mix together beef, potatoes, and beets. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt butter in skillet, add hash and milk, and cook over low heat until one side is brown. Turn and brown the other side.

Makes 4 servings



THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

St. Simon's (Oct. 28) is never dry.

Feeder Cattle Auction: No report this week due to no reporters available.

Tull Hill Farms doesn't own that building, but a sharp management decision made it one of their best assets.

Jimmy and Michael Hill Tull Hill Farms Kinston, North Carolina

The Hill family was ready to pay cash for a new 80,000 square foot storage facility for Tull Hill Farms. They changed their mind when Telmark explained how much they could save by leasing the facility instead. Their sharp management decision saved profits by adding to the bottom line with a Telmark operating lease. They also have a buyout option at the end of the lease term.

The Hill family found the tax breaks, end-of-term buyout option, and flexible payment plan so attractive, they leased the complete facility. Most lenders aren't ready to offer this kind of alternative financing.

Telmark understands building and equipment financing needs for all types of commercial and agricultural operations. For a financing source that's been listening to farmers for over 30 years, call your Telmark representative or 800-451-3322.

OPINION

How Gullible Are We?

Opponents of agriculture often use half-truths, innuendo, and false science to back their disparaging remarks about our efforts to feed the world.

In a report from Terry Downs of Twin Falls Idaho on Dairy-L of the Internet, a freshman at Eagle Rock Junior High School won first prize at the greater Idaho Falls science fair when he showed how conditioned we have become to alarmists practing junk science and spreading fear of everything in our environment. His project urged people to sign a petition demanding strict control or total elimination of the chemical "dihydrogen monoxide."

The student gave plenty of good reasons since:

1. it can cause excessive sweating and vomiting;
2. it is a major component in acid rain;
3. it can cause severe burns in its gaseous state;
4. accidental inhalation can kill you;
5. it contributes to erosion;
6. it decreases effectiveness of automobile brakes; and
7. it has been found in tumors of terminal cancer patients.

Of the 50 people the student ask to support the ban of the chemical, 43 said yes, six were undecided, and only one knew that the chemical was water.

Appropriately, the title of the prize winning project was "How Gullible Are We?"

To Manage Replacement Ewes

According to Chester Hughes, Lancaster County Extension Livestock Agent, ewe lambs born in March and April are excellent candidates to be used as replacement ewes in spring lambing flocks With proper feeding and breeding management, spring born ewe lambs should have lambs by the time they are 12 to 14 months old Ewes that have their first lambs as yearlings have a higher lifetime production than ewes lambing first as two year olds. Select the fastest growing twin or triplet ewe lambs as replacements. Not only is there an advantage in improved prolificacy, but twin and triplet lambs have a more moderate growth rate, which prevents excess fat deposition in the udder. Lifetime milk production maybe reduced in ewe lambs grown at an accelerated rate before reaching puberty. Ewe lambs should weigh approximately 60 per cent of their mature body weight at the time of breeding. Expose the ewe lambs to rams for 50 days. Use marking harness to monitor breeding activity To ensure proper development, ewe lambs should receive one pound of grain daily up through lambing To prevent excessively large lambs at birth, grain should not be increased during late gestation

To Turn Clocks Back

This week end marks the end of daylight savings time. Most people will turn back their clocks one hour before they go to bed Saturday night. This is a good time to replace your smoke and carbon monoxide detectors batteries. If you do not have these detectors installed in your home, this would be a good time to install them. Detectors do save lives. Considering you have only a few minutes to escape from a burning house, the extra time a smoke detector gives you could be priceless. Every year we see more reports of people suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning. If you have not installed a carbon monoxide detectors in your house, you may want to consider buying and installing ones at several locations in your house. This is inexpensive insurance you may purchase that could save your family's lives. Also, remember dead batteries will not sound an alarm Replace your batteries this week end when you are turning your clocks back.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

DOES PRAYER REALLY DO ANYTHING?
October 26, 1997

Background Scripture:
Daniel 9
Devotional Reading
Daniel 7:7-14

I've been praying as long as I've been talking. I cannot remember a time when I did not pray.

I've prayed, not because someone persuaded me that I should pray, nor because anyone taught me how to pray. To be sure, I've experienced some of both the "shoulds" and the "hows," but that is not why I first prayed and have continued to do so.

As best I can remember, I first prayed because praying was as natural as crying, being hungry, and all those other things humans seem to "know" from the very beginning. I prayed because it was the natural way for me to react to God's presence in my life — something else which I don't think I was taught.

I don't mean that my parents didn't teach me about God and that they did not mention prayer, nor that I was not influenced by the Sunday schools to which they took me. But my awareness of God and practice of prayer seemed to precede the formal instruction of both parents and church. Maybe my recollection is in error, but that is really the way I remember it.

EARLIEST REMEMBRANCE

Furthermore, I doubt that my experience of God and prayer are unique. Maybe others do not remember it quite as I do, but I believe we all come into this world with a knowledge of God and prayer that may vary only in degree of consciousness and unconsciousness of it. What may provide the difference in earliest awareness may be primarily the spiritual support that surrounds us in the family. I think I prayed to God before I knew who God is and what prayer can be. My family and my church simply gave a name to what I already knew.

So, 47 or so years ago when I first read Harry Emerson Fosdick's wonderful book, The Meaning of Prayer, I understood exactly what Fosdick meant when he said that prayer is a natural human capacity. He quotes Professor William James — who became another favorite of mine — in saying, "We hear in these days of scientific enlightenment a great deal of discussion about the efficacy of prayer; and many reasons are given us why we should not pray, whilst others are given us why we should. But in all this very little is said of the reason why we do pray...The reason why we do pray is simply that we cannot help praying" (Association Press, 1915,1959, p. 9).

I used to think that people prayed or didn't pray because their previoius experiences persuaded them that it does or does not work. But I have changed my mind on that. Lots of my prayers didn't seem to "work" — at least, not as I thought they ought to — but that never dissuaded me from praying. Ultimately, I learned — again in the words of Fodsdick — "We must not conceive of prayer as an overcoming of God's reluctance, but as a laying hold of his highest willingness."

CONFIRMATION

When Daniel read the prophecy of Jeremiah (25:11, 12;29:10), he responded naturally: "Then I turned my face to the Lord God, seeking him by prayer and supplications with fasting and sackcloth and ashes. I prayed to the Lord my God and made confession.." (9:3,4). Daniel poured out his heart to God, not because he was taught to pray that way, but because it was his natural response to the reality of his God.

Daniel received a confirmation of his prayer in a way that few of us ever experience. the angel Gabriel came to him in a vision and said, "O Daniel, I have now come to give you wisdom and understanding. At the beginning of your supplications a word went forth and I have come to tell it to you..." I believe a "word" goes "forth" from God whenever we pray.

Blessed are those who see the angel who visits them when they pray; but blessed also are those who pray without ever seeing the angels who come to all of us.

Lancaster Farmland Trust

Last year the funding campaign raised over $180,000, and the goal this year is $200,000. Contributions come from individuals, families, foundations, and businesses. The Trust neither seeks nor accepts funding from any government agency — a fact that helps ensure the appeal of the Trust's program to the County's Amish and Plain Sect farmers.

Lancaster Farmland Trust is a private, non-profit organization working to preserve the rich and productive farmland of Lancaster County, to support good stewardship of the land, and to encourage a thriving agricultural economy, recognizing that our farm heritage enriches the lives of all citizens.

Phyllis Whitesell remarked, "The World Monument Association's recent designation of Lancaster County as one of the top 100 Most Endangered Sites in the world highlights the ever more critical need to preserve Lancaster County farms. This year's goal is ambitious, but we must reach it if we are to continue to save farmland and preserve Lancaster County's quality of life and agricultural heritage."

Executive Director Thomas D. Stouffer is enthusiastic about this year's campaign and the accomplishments of the Trust. He noted: "I am pleased and excited to announce that this will be a very good year. I am confident that we will be preserving at least 15 farms in 1997, four more than we have preserved in one year. This will bring our total to at least 80 farms and over 5,200 acres preserved. When added to the work of the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board, this means over 25,000 acres of farmland preserved in Lancaster County since 1988. That acreage represents 20% of all farmland preserved in Pennsylvania. Lancaster County's public/private cooperation remains a model for farmland preservation efforts across the nation."

He added: "If you are concerned about sprawl and over development, the most powerful thing you can do is contribute to farmland preservation. And it's not too late if we act now!"

Berks Sets Farm-City Banquet

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The 14th annual Berks County Farm-City Banquet has been set for Nov. 6 at the Sheraton Berkshire in Wyomissing.

Reservations and prepayment are required, and a name tag made from the reservation information will be given out the evening of the banquet and will serve as a ticket for the event.

The deadline for reservations is Oct. 30.

Checks should be made payable to Berks County Farm-City Council, and sent to: Phina Bodock, Farm-City Banquet, Berks County Ag Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533.

The cost is $15 per person and includes a social hour, dinner and the Farm-City program with state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. to speak, as well as the farm-city business exchange program participants.

The social hour is to start at 6 p.m., and hors d'oeuvers are to be provided, including french-fried mushrooms and vegetables, and milk punch. There is also to be a table of "Berks Bountiful Harvest" products connected with a program contest.

Dinner is to start at 7 p.m. and feature roast pork medlaiion, with peas with mushrooms and red pepper, a garden salad with fresh mushrooms, a fruit cup, rolls and butter, and desert.

The program is slated to start at 8 p.m. with greetings from Secretary Hayes, followed by the work-exchange participants.

This year's non-farm participants are Chuck Gallagher, managing editor of the Reading Eagle-Times; and Dr. Robert Hohl, superintendent of the Berks Career and Technology Center.

Farmers are to be Richard Hawk, president of the Farr Nursery and Landscaping Co.; and Rex Peters, manager of Peters Brothers Meats.

There are also awards and prizes to be presented, including a public relations-in-agriculture award and a women-in-agriculture award.

A farm-city quilt made and donated by the Berks County Pomona Grange is to be auctioneed, along with some other gifts, to provide support for on-going farm-city activities.

For businesses wishing to provide support, for $30 each business will receive one banquet ticket as well as mention in the program flyer. Businesses are also welcomed to reserve tables of 10 for clientele.

(Change from December 1, 1997)
Sale Every Mon., Wed. & Fri. Until January 17 -

Farmer, you will hear a lot from county buyers in the field such as our tobacco goes overseas, and so forth. With Contracts signed in the country it's hard for Paradise to raise prices.

P.S. We have a strong demand for Type 41 tobacco at Paradise. Make Paradise your Type 41 marketplace. We Need 41 and 609.

We Will Be On Your Farm Soon With Top Quality, Rocky Mountain Cotton Twine - Not Seconds. Remember, There Is A Difference.

House Panel Approves Miller's Bill To Increase Access To Fishing

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The House Game and Fisheries Committee has unanimously approved a bill sponsored by Rep. Sheila Miller (R-Berks) which would allow farm families to fish in lakes and streams on their property without having to purchase a fishing license.

The measure also allows farm families, who own 80 or more acres and keep their property open to the public for fishing, to purchase a Pennsylvania fishing license for half the regular fee to fish anywhere in the state.

"House Bill 1512 is a way to say, 'thank you,' to Pennsylvania's farm families for providing the public with increased access to fishing in the creeks and ponds on their farms," Miller said.

"In return for their support of the sport, I'm suggesting that the state allow these individuals to not only fish on their own property without a license, but to have the privilege of fishing anywhere in the state with a license purchased at half the regular cost."

Miller said the legislation was suggested to her by the local Farm Bureau.

The provisions of Miller's bill apply to the owners, lessees or tenants of general farms, truck farms, commercial orchards, or commercial nurseries, as well as their family members and regularly hired help. The Pennsylvania Fish Commission would administer the program which is modeled after a similar program, for farmers who keep their lands open for public hunting.

Free fishing licenses would be issued to the qualified individuals who are Pennsylvania residents, age 16 or older, who meet the regular requirements for securing a license.

"As an added benefit to farmers and their employees, my legislaton also contains a provision allowing these people to fish without a license on lands adjacent to their farms as long as they have the written consent of the neighboring farm's owner," Miller stressed.

"The lakes, streams, ponds, creeks and rivers located on the Commonwelth's farms are some of the best fishing spots in the state," Miller said.

"If my legislation is enacted, more people could have access to these beautiful and tranquil areas," the Lawmaker added.

Dairylea Cooperative Reviews Year of Growth

Rutherford swaid, "The bottom line of all our endeavors...is to help improve the productivity, profitability and quality of life for our farmer members. Our efforts in this regard are second to none."

In light of the low pricing cycle experienced by farmers, Rutherford reviewed Dairylea's recent efforts aimed at establishing over-Order pricing in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. "The circumstances of this year have warranted immediate and forceful action. It has become abundantly clear that the marketplace is not working for our members."

Additionally, Rutherford stressed the importance of dairy farmers contacting their government representatives to explain the hardship of the current price/cost squeeze. "Let them know that emergency price relief measures are needed now," he added.

Dairylea Cooperative is a Syracuse-based agricultural service organization, cooperatively owned by more than 2,800 farmers throughout the Northeast. Marketing approximately five billion pounds of milk annually, it participates, and is invested, in a milk-marketing network stretching from Maine to Ohio to Maryland.

Somerset Vo-Tech Ag Programs Challenging, Balanced, Community Intergrated

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The accelerated whine of a chain saw echoes toward busy Route 31 in the near distance.

Neighbors don't mind the racket. They know James Harrold's forestry students at the Somerset County Area Vocational-Technical School (SCAVTS), are busy in the two wood lots, cutting fire wood to sell.

It's a comforting thought -- a warm, homey thought.

Meanwhile, Tom Willey's horticulture students are into raising carnations, poinsettias and house plants, but will soon turn attention to sowing seeds for early spring plants.

When the snow is flying outside, the promising new life indoors will continue to burst forth.

Harrold and Willey lead the agriculture program that recently garnered state top honors. As a result, in December, Willey will attend the National Teachers In-Service Program in Las Vegas, a trip the state Agriculture Teachers Association will accept the tab for.

"We have a very good firewood business," says Harrold, a 26-year career man who came aboard right in the beginning.

The forestry program, he explained about the 85 acres of woodland, acquaints the students with hardwood ecology and pine management, while giving them practical and academic experience.

The kids learn to measure cord wood volume and board foot volume and do the cutting in their own sawmill. They communicate and work with area businesses and individuals.

Being tuned in to the explosion of technology and current events on the world forestry market is a primary concern of Harrold, who was an on-site observer in Japan.

"The Japanese are using wood products from western Pennsylvania," the consultant said. "There is a demand for products from western Pennsylvania."

As they enter the work force following school, he wants his kids to be prepared and confident, ready for the challenge of earning a good living, making a contribution to society and ready to continue land stewardship.

"I use the state contest to see if we are using up-to-date skills," Harrold reported. "The kids' performance is a measurement."

Not surprisingly, Harold says computers have caused the most dramatic changes he has seen in his career.

And now, of course, internet accessibility, which has enhanced every field of education.

"I'm proud to say our computer program is as modern as any in Pennsylvania," he stated.

Harrold acknowledged that in the past business management was an aspect of the program where the kids needed improvement. Nowadays they are much stronger at figuring costs and decision-making because the problem was addressed.

The up and coming foresters created a quarter-mile long nature trail on school land that both the public and school associates enjoy, with added appreciation for the various signs of identification they can read during their stroll.

Wood Duck boxes and Bluebird boxes consume much of the lumber that is harvested.

The pine lot was created. The hardwood stand, however, was naturally grown. The youthful engineers of forestry, by appropriately pruning and thinning the trees, are learning the practice of proper management.

Nobody, of course, enters the woods without first receiving classroom safety instruction about handling power toools. Demonstrating in advance his competency with a chain saw is crucial to a guy's actually working with it.

Travis Boden, Brad Sanner, Kyle McKenzie and Brian Sanner composed the winning forestry team. Their combined knowledge and capability in every aspect of forestry was tested. At the National FFA Convention they will represent Pennsylvania in the forestry judging contest.

Willey, whose strengths are in plant science and plant research, says the sub-areas of the Horticulture program are aquaculture, landscaping, floral design and basic greenhouse production.

"Basically, we prepare them (students), to go out in the work force within a short period of time after graduation," he reported.

Melissa Leasock, left, beside instructor Tom Wiley at the Someret County Area Vocational-Technical School, holds a Eucalyptus swag that she created. Jessica Brant and Tiffany Harrison are working on other floral designs.

"There is a fairly large demand for them coming out of the program. With six greenhouses around the Somerset area, it takes a lot of employees to staff them."

They try to operate the school greenhouse as a production facility, Willey said. It has automatic tables and is self-watering. The system recirculates the water.

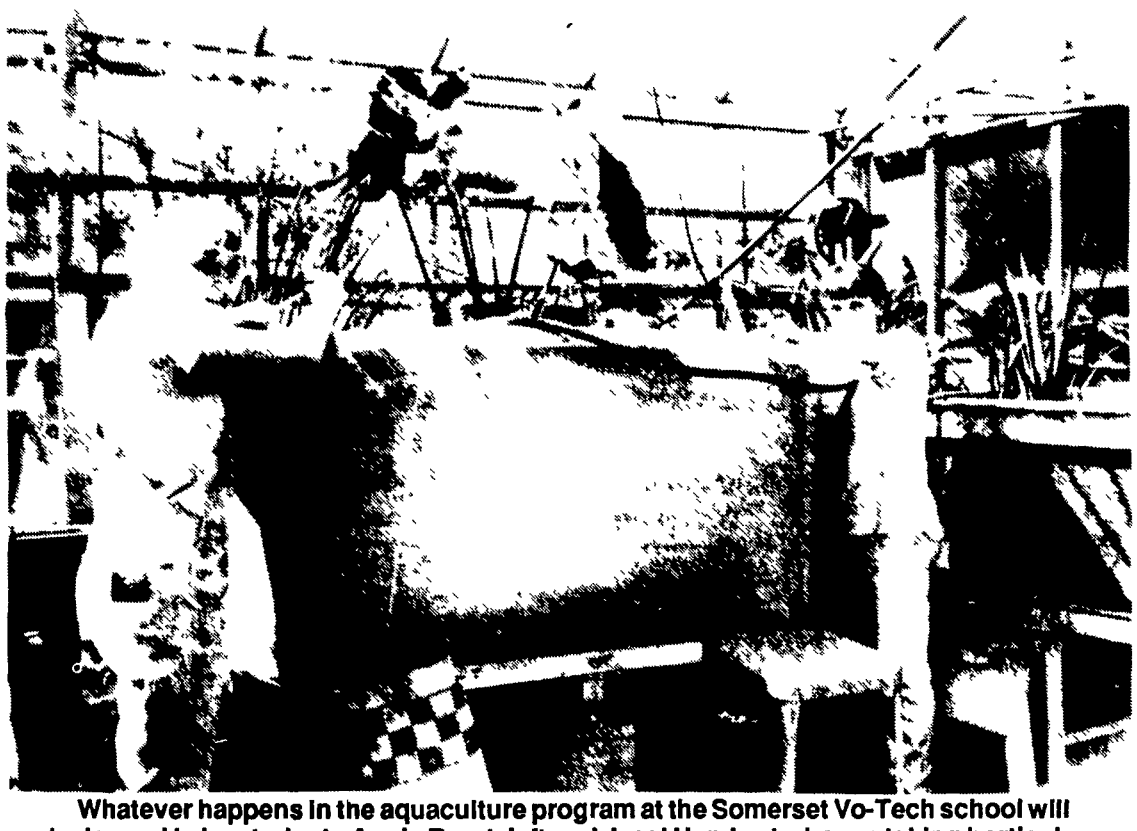
Overhead sprinkling has been used two years, but the glitch to this was the kids, when they later worked in a commercial facility, didn't hand water correctly, although with the automatic system there were no problems.

That's why the craft advisory committee's annual visit is vital to Willey's program. They point out what is lacking; what they want from potential employees and where they expect greatest competency in job performance.

Next spring, as always, the department will sell the bedding plants, geraniums, Easter lilies and floral baskets to the public just as a commercial greenhouse does.

Naturally, the same is true of the poinsettias, beautiful wreaths, etc. for the upcoming holiday season.

John Teets, left and Brad Sanner, forestry students at the Somerset County Area Vocational-Technical School, are performing chain saw maintenance.



Whatever happens in the aquaculture program at the Somerset Vo-Tech school will be logged in by students Angie Brant, left and Jessi Humbert who are taking horticulture in the ag department. Also pictured are Elephant Ear plants and Egyptian Paper plants which are used in landscaping.

Academics and horticulture go hand in hand. Without a solid grasp of mathematics the kids couldn't run a greenhouse, sell their product to the public, measure land area for landscaping design, communicate their ideas through required speech giving, nor complete the written work that Willey gives them to do.

One student's assignment, using the internet, was to identify a plant and collect the information with which to download its description into the computer.

She worked an entire day on the task.

Aquatics and landscaping aspects of the program overlap. Many outdoor decorators enjoy plants and fish together.

Four water tanks in the department each hold 150 gallons while the capacity of the fifth is some 450 gallons. The syustem allows aeration to occur at intervals.

Currently, Koi -- "They kind of came from my parent's house," says Willey -- Tilapia from South America and Japanese Ornamental fish swim in the shadow of broad-leafed Elephant Ears and Egyptian Paper plants.

A warm water fish, the Tilapia has the potential of reaching a foot in length, reported Willey.

Seven Springs Mountain Resort near Champion is keen about working with the Vo-Tech ag department. Wiley and his teen-aged learners handle the resort's annual striped bass project, starting in November to grow the fingerlings.

The water temperature is very warm — 95 degrees — for the babies but as their size increases, it's lowered to 70 degrees.

Fish wastes, eventually, are recycled for plant fertilizer.

Landscaping around the SCAVTS grounds and adjacent Somerset campus of Allegany College of Maryland headquartered in Cumberland, Allegany County, Md., is also the responsibility of Willey's team.

interested in floral design, which includes pine Christmas wreaths, is that of arranging flowers for a real wedding.

As far as potential brides and grooms, this very cost-effective means of having a beautiful wedding and reception is a first come, first served, situation, Willey warns. If interested, plan accordingly.

Purple roses needed for one wedding had to be specially ordered from California.

Willey says that local florists are very cooperative in working with the entry-level professionals under his instruction, particularly when the circumstances are unique.

Bud vases, table ornaments and numerous floral expressions are originated by students in the classroom.

Money from various sales is refunneled into the ag programs.

Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board Approves 40-Cent Increase

Therefore, on May 1, 1998, the over-order premium is set to return to 50-cents.

Close to, but prior to that time, it can be expected that the PMMB will again hold a public hearing to gather information to help guide its policies.

Just less than half of all milk sold in Pennsylvania is used as fluid milk and receives a federal Class I use rating.

The federal government uses a formula to determine minimum federal order prices. The nation is divided into "milk pools" and the federal orders reflect those pools, though the relevance of the relationship between local prices and local milk availability has been dimming in recent years with mergers of producer and milk marketing cooperatives.

Furthermore, the whole program is undergoing change as prescribed in the 1996 Farm Bill, and the Farm Bill calls for a reduction in the number of different federal orders.

In general, the USDA sets monthly national minimums for each federal milk marketing order by considering market prices of milk and related dairy products, as well as production prices. It also considers how the milk is used.

An USDA federal order administrator announces the prices, and provides data on milk usage and volume.

Farmers receive their pay for milk after it is used by a processor. The processor decides how best to use the milk to supply its markets, and then pays the farmer based on those decisions. The farmer usually also gets billed for hauling the milk to the processor.

The PMMB is an oversight and consumer-interest board for the dairy industry in Pennsylvania, charged with the mission of ensuring a safe, reliable milk supply, and protection of farmer-pay from the sale of milk, among other mandates.

It has the authority to set minimum retail and wholesale prices on milk sold in Pennsylvania, and to set an over-order premium (money that gets paid to farmers above the federal marketing order minimum price) on drinking milk produced, processed and sold within Pennsylvania.

The Oct. 10 special hearing of the PMMB to reconsider the level was held at the recommendation and request of state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr., whose reasons included severely declined milk prices, increased feed prices, and decreased crop production (currently the entire state is eligible for disaster assistance via federal low-interest loans).

Upon learning of Secretary Hayes leadership in calling for the special hearing, the state's leading agricultural organizations joined in support.

Secretary Hayes also testified at the Oct. 10 hearing, as well as did representatives of the farmer organizations.

"My testimony is not going to be a statistical treatise about milk prices. I have poured over numbers, charts, coefficients, graphs, tables, diagrams, and other data," Hayes told the board.

"However, after all of the economic analysis, you come back to one fundamental fact: dairy farmers are receiving approximately 30 percent less for their milk today than they did last year.

"Dairy farmers cannot survive this type of economic depression forever."

He said that while some continue to offer that, "Farmers need to be better managers," an oft-repeated phrase of no specific help, Hayes argued that today's Pennsylvania dairy farmer is an excellent model of efficiency.

"There are over 3,000 fewer farms, 92,000 fewer cows, but the remaining dairy farmers and their cows have increased total available milk by 400 million pounds," Hayes said, comparing 1996 data to that of 1986.

"The dairy farmer knows how to be a good manager. But, it is pretty hard to manage over an extended period of time through a depression-like environment which brings about a 30-percent drop in your revenues."

He said that though individual states cannot change the federal order milk marketing structure, Pennsylvania has the opportunity to adjust its over-order premium to provide some relief to instate producers.

"Such an opportunity will not solve all of the problems which are inherent in the federal pricing system. Nevertheless, we should do what we can to provide some measure of empathy and economic relief for our embattled dairy farmers."

He said that he wanted to, "... respectfully suggest we should be guided by a few principles when considering the dairy farmers' plight."

He said that the first principle should be the prevention of the loss of the state's dairy business.

"You and I do not want the dairy industry to become an offshore industry as happened with Pennsylvania's steel and textiles.

"From 1956 to 1996, Pennsylvania employment in the primary metal industry dropped 74 percent.

"Textile and garment employment in Pennsylvania dropped 75 percent during this same period.

"Do we want the same for the Pennsylvania dairy industry which generates approximately 38 percent of Pennsylvania's agricultural economy? Do we want our dairy industry to migrate out of Pennsylvania and off-shore as has happened to steel, textiles, and the garment industry? I think not."

He said his second principle was the prevention of the loss of diversity in the dairy industry through the attrition of family farms and the take over of mega corporations.

"Big is not a bad word; but, it should be possible for the individual dairy farmer to grow larger, enjoy the economic advantages offered by economy of scale, without the need to sell out to mega-corporations," he said.

He said the third principle should be to ensure that consumers do not suffer a surge in shelf price.

"A few things should be noted. While dairy farmers have experienced a 30-percent drop in their prices (received), consumer prices for retail dairy products have remained fairly stable. For sure, consumer prices have not dropped 30 percent.

"It should also be noted that for every dollar spent, only 23 cents covered the farm value of food purchases, and the rest, 77 percent, was marketing costs.

Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board Approves 40-Cent Increase

"It is possible to adjust the over-order premium without there being need for consumer prices to increase. There must be fairness. There must be restraint."

He said a fourth principle must be to prevent processors from seeking profits by using out-of-state supplies for drinking milk, instead of using local milk and having to pay the over-order premium.

"We must be careful when considering the over-order premium to not create a situation which causes a heavy flow of new milk into Pennsylvania from out-of-state. It does not seem we are anywhere near that point."

While Hayes never suggested or recommended a specific level of premium adjustment, he said that it should not be less than what was set in the years 1989, 1990, 1991, or 1992.

Others testifying included Bill Steel, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange (which celebrates its 125th session in Reading this week).

On behalf of the State Grange, Steel thanked Hayes for requesting the hearing, and said that it would support a 40-cent increase, and that it would support the PMMB in any effort to expand the over-order premium to other catagories of milk use.

He said that it was his experience that many dairy farmers do not know exactly what they are getting paid for, and that the "blend" price is confusing.

The blend price is the price of milk after all the uses are figured out and combined. For example, a farmer gets substantially less for his milk that gets used for chocolate or ice cream or cheese, and he doesn't have a say in how it is used, just in to whom he sells.

Steel's point was that the cost of milk production is the same for all the milk, whether or not it gets eventually used for ice cream rather than drinking milk.

While drinking milk brings the most money to the farmer, he is not the decision-maker in how it gets used.

To keep operational funding levels stable in light of a volatile pricing system for milk, a processor has the ability to juggle his uses of milk delivered. The processor can use less for drinking milk and more to build less perishable, non-drinking milk dairy product inventories (non-affected products by the PMMB) until the price drops for buying drinking milk.

A processor can also resell the milk for less-cost use to another processor, and purchase non-premium affected milk for drinking purposes.

However, while apparently not illegal, any instate processor that operated in such a fashion would be biting the hand that feeds it, since the PMMB also sets minimum retail prices to help the processor stay in business while supplying the farmer with the premium.

To help prevent misunderstanding by farmers, and to prevent any use manipulations by processors from denying producers their fair share of profit, Steel suggested that the PMMB look into "... applying any future over-order premium to additional classes of milk."

Land O'Lakes, a multi-state dairy cooperative into which the more local Atlantic Dairy Cooperative merged this spring (April 1), also presented testimony in support of the increase.

Land O'Lakes representative Dennis Schad testified. In a news release from the cooperative, Schad stated, "It is our position that a $1.20 Class I per hundredweight premium is needed to generate an adequate return to Pennsylvania dairy farmers."

However, in the case of the co-op, the premium designed to benefit Pennsylvania producers is absorbed into the total cooperative's income and distributed equally to all members, including those in other states.

The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau also supported the raise, also citing increased production costs for state producers.

According to a PFB news release on the hearing, Rotz told the board that milk marketing conditions nationwide will be unaffected by the relatively local drought conditions experienced in the Mid-Atlantic region, putting Pennsylvania producers at a relative competitive disadvantage to producers in other states.

Rotz said the action to increase the premium would benefit producers in adjoining states, which have been following Pennsylvania's lead to prevent predatory practices that hurt producers in other states — a factor in the dramatic decline in Maryland's dairy production and processing industry.

Bob Junk, of Pennsylvania Farmers Union, also testified in support of the increase. Others, including state legislators, also supported the hike.

Since 1988, the PMMB has mandated that an over-order premium be paid to producers for their Class I milk processed and sold instate.

Dairymen's Club Solicits Award Nominations

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairymen's Club is soliciting nominations for its annual service award.

The honor is rotated through three industry segments — producers, industry representatives and educators. This year a dairy producer who has worked toward the advancement and betterment of the dairy industry will be recognized.

Nominations can include retirees as well as those still active. Any person is eligible to nominate candidates for this award and nominees do not have to be Penn State alumni.

This year will mark the seventh award. Previous winners include Robert Patton (Monsanto Company), William Conyngham (Hillside Farm), Larry Specht (Penn State), Dean Amick (Pennsylvania DHIA), Sam Williams (Bryncoed Farm), Steve Spencer (Penn State), and Duane Norman (USDA). The winner will be recognized at the Penn State Dairymen's Club annual meeting on Friday, Nov. 14, at University Park.

All nominations of industry personnel should be submitted to Beth Raney, 405 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802 (fax 814-863-7209). Deadline for nominations is November 1.

There is no specific format for nominations, but items that may be discussed are leadership in the agricultural community, personal involvement in the dairy industry, and personal achievement and contributions to local organizations or youth.

Mattilio Heads Lancaster County Poultry Association

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

COLUMBIA (Lancaster Co.) — John Mattilio is the newly appointed president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

In the past the position has been filled with producers and industry people. Mattilio is neither. He is assistant vice president with the agrifinance department of CoreStates Bank.

A banker, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association?

Mattilio admits that some fail to see the correlation, but for those who know Mattilo, the appointment was a natural one.

Mattilio has been an active member of the Poultry Association for four years and has just finished a one-year term as treasurer.

"I want to see the poultry industry prosper as much as producers, salespersons, and every other person in the industry," he said. "It doesn't matter if the president is a service person, a banker, or a producer. The primary requirement is commitment and a goal to promote the industry," Mattilio said.

Although Mattilio doesn't know all the production aspects of the industry, he considers that secondary to other aspects required to run a successful association. The presidential role requires organization, coordination, and lots of phone contacts.

Mattilio grew up on a dairy farm in Armstrong County.

In addition to the work ethic being instilled in him by growing up on a farm, Mattilio said the experience is one that few people with nonfarm background can understand.

John Mattilio, assistant vice president of agrifinance for CoreStates Bank, is the newly appointed president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

"In farming, there are so many variables. You never know what you're going to find the next day. A cow dies. . . a tractor breaks down. . . so many things happen that you can't control," he said. He believes that this forces farmers to become adaptable to change and to learn to solve problems that arise.

Mattilio received a degree in dairy sciences and agriculture education from Penn State with the intent of returning to the family farm. When Mattilio was graduated in 1986, interests rates were high. He and his dad were hesitant to put money into expanding the family farm.

Instead Mattilio took a job in ag lending with Farm Credit. Over the years, he has taken accounting courses to enhance his degree. About eight years ago, he moved to Pennsylvania, and now works for CoreStates Bank.

He manages a $62 million agricultural portfolio, Mattilio said, that is fairly evenly split among the four animal groups mostly with large family farms. He travels to different areas of the state to help farm customers use resources to accomplish their goals. Mattilio said that his job is more than protecting assets for the bank. Sometimes financially a farm could easily afford expansion, but Mattilio will discourage it if it isn't the best for a family.

"It is important that the whole family agree on every expansion project. Too many marriages suffer and too many divorces have happened if the husband and wife aren't in agreement about expansion projects," he said.

Mattilio has a strong admiration for farmers in Lancaster County. He said, "People here work smarter than anyone I've ever seen in all my travels. I can't go to another county where there are so many farms and ag-related businesses."

Family is considered priority in Mattilio's life. He and his wife Melissa love spending time with daughters, Chloe, 2, and Clare, 9 months.

It was through his affiliation with the bank that Mattilio's relationship with the poultry industry unfolded.

The Poultry Association's mission is to support and promote the industry and educate people about it. The association has about 100 individual farm family members and 60 ag-related business members. The membership fee is $25

Chester County Holstein Club Honors Achievements

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

WEST FALLOWFIELD (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Holstein Club held its annual meeting and banquet Tuesday at the West Fallowfield Christian School.

Ed Breckbill, president of the club, reported that the club had a good year, and reviewed the past year's activities with a slide presentation of tours and field events, as well as a few slides of a trip taken to Brazil and Holstein and dairy activities there.

The club held an election of directors, recognized its outstanding youth, top milk and protein production achievements of members' cows and heifers, and presented reports on state and national Holstein activities.

Re-elected to the board were Rodney Bare of Atlgen and Tim Barlow of Cochranville. Newly elected was Bob Piefer.

A special presentation of Pennsylvania Holstein Association jackets was made to Keith Silfee and Christ Taylor for two years of outstanding effort in the annual club cheese sale.

It was announced that last year the club had sold 50 of the 40-pound cases of cheese that is sold annually by most clubs to raise operational funds. The sale raised $1,104 for the Chester Club.

In advance for this year, another 50 cases was ordered. Delivery for the Chester Club is to be Nov. 10.

Sharon Nolan and Duane Hershey, co-chairs of the youth committee, presented youth awards.

Receiving the club's outstanding FFA member awards were Julie Kulp of the Owen J. Roberts FFA Chapter, and Kevin Noland of the Octorara FFA Chapter.

The outstanding first-year 4-H Holstein project book award recipient was Beverly Stoltzfus.

The recipient of the outstanding 4-H Holstein project and record book overall was Vicki Hewitt.

The high protein 2-year-old production award went to Lundale Journey Debra-TW, owned by Erica Lloyd, who is also a dairy priness. Debra produced 27,520 pounds of milk and 3.3 percent, or 879 pounds of protein.

In second place was Ryan Kurtz whose heifer Magic made 27,970 pounds of milk with 872 pounds protein; while third place of Kendall Kurtz's Fair cow that made 24,991 pounds milk and 770 pounds protein.

Brandon Umble had the highest protein-producing mature cow of the Chester County Holstein youth.

His Glen-Valley High Twilight made 34,210 pounds milk, 1,128 pounds fat, and 1,013 pounds protein. All awards are based on 305-day production.

In second was Tom Herr's cow Galen, with 30,859 pounds milk and 985 pounds of protein, while Rusty Herr's cow Frizzy made 25,012 pounds milk and 941 pounds protein.

Those recognized in the adult production awards were Noland King, who had the highest protein-producing 2-year-old. His Elaine cow made 33,099 pounds of milk and 1,037 pounds fat and 962 pounds of protein.

The high protein-producing mature cow was Dunwood Golden Bell Cara, owned by Melvin and Alvin Stoltzfus. The cow is kept in Melvin Stoltzfus's Melwood Farm herd and made 36,862 pounds of milk, 1,506 pounds of fat and 1,296 pounds of protein in 305 days of a lactation started at 7 years, 7 months of age.

The winner in the contest of the highest- and still producing cow with at least 200,000-pounds of milk lifetime was a 14-year-old cow, Kurview Legacy Cher, VG-89, with 311,361 pounds milk, 11,722 pounds fat and 10,163 pounds protein, owned by Leon and Sarah Kurtz.

In second place was a 10-year-old cow with 213,225 pounds milk, Vionet Stabuck Shana, VG-88, owned by Dale and Dorthea Hostetter.

Melvin Stoltzfus also was recognized for having the highest herd BAA with 107.7 percent. He has a 50-cow milking herd.

In second place was Breck-A-De Farms, owned by Breckbill,

Counties Eligible For Disaster Aid

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. on Oct. 10 announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has declared all 67 Pennsylvania counties eligible for emergency loans because of the severe drought conditions in the spring and early summer.

In early September, Gov. Ridge made the request because of the significantly reduced yields to nearly all crops. Of the commonwealth's 67 counties, 46 were designated as natural disaster areas, in the USDA declaration. The remaining 21 counties are eligible as continguous counties.

Hayes said that this designation qualifies some family farmers for emergency loans from the USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA).

"We are pleased that Gov. Ridge's request for assistance to the commonwealth's number one industry has been approved, " Hayes said. "This has been a very difficult summer for Pennsylvania farmers, and the official declaration from the USDA will offer some support for our struggling farmers.

"The drought, coupled with the severe heat, put many of our farm families in a very serious financial situation. Because of the delayed maturation of crops, stunted growth and low yields, many farmers are facing a shortage of feed as they go into the winter months, in addition to loss of income."

In the reports submitted to USDA, 46 counties suffered over 30 percent reductions in at least one crop. Estimated crop losses in most of these counties range from 30 to 80 percent.

Damage assessment reports were completed and confirmed by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service and the State Emergency Board, based on information from county emergency boards.

Holstein Association™

NEWS

Holstein Association Completes New Herdbook Programming

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — The Holstein Association recently completed computer programming for its newly restructured herdbook.

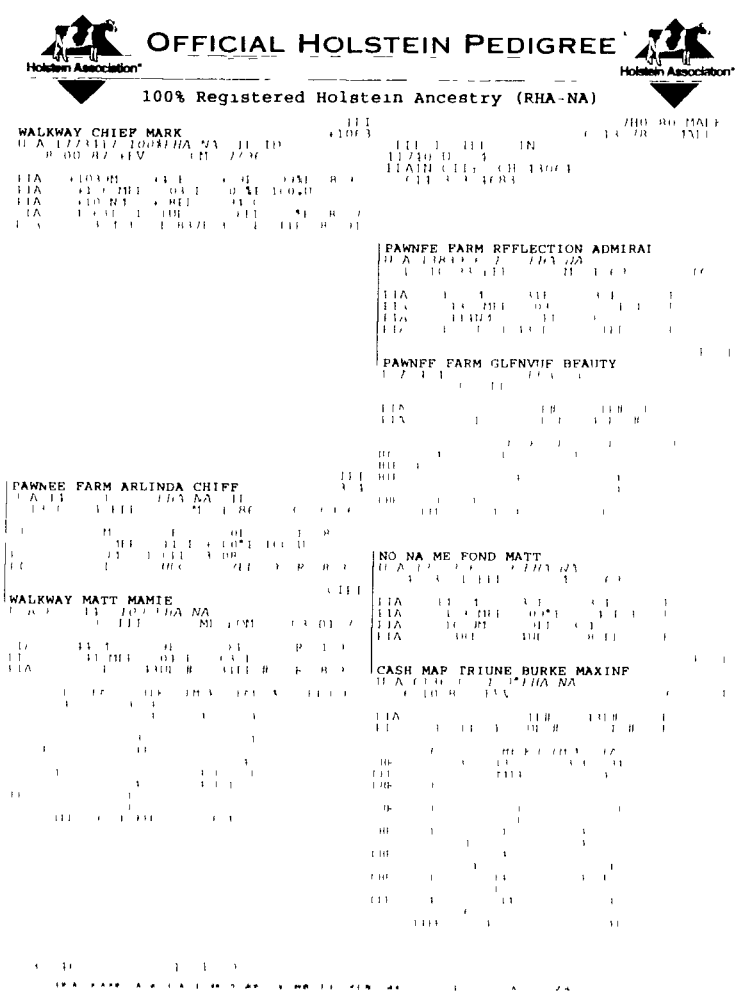
On Oct. 1, the Association began printing registration certificates and Official Holstein Pedigrees with the percentage RHA for each animal listed on the document.

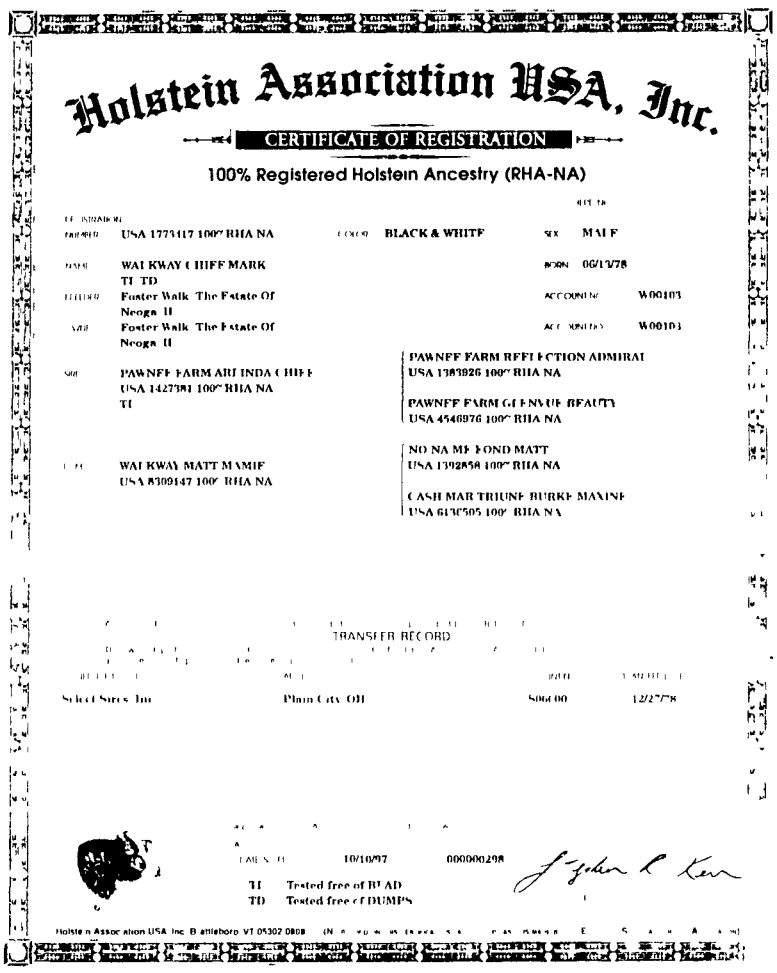
All certificates, regardless of percentage RHA, are now printed on the same blue-bordered paper. Other format changes make the documents easier to read.

Delegates to the 112th National Holstein Convention voted to change the Association's herdbook structure to create a single, fully disclosed herdbook that replaces the Purebred Herdbook, Qualified Herdbook and Identified Holstein Female (IHF) program.

The action by the delegates also created a system by which each animal in the herdbook has calculated, recorded and reported a percentage "Registered Holstein Ancestry" or "RHA." This percentage is calculated by averaging the percent RHA of the parents and then rounding down to the nearest whole number.

Any breeder who registered animals with less than 100 percent RHA after June 30, 1997, may return their red or green certificates for free replacement with the blue certificates. These will also list the percentage RHA of the animal, which was previously unavailable for animals in the IHF or Qualified Holstein Program.





For more information, contact the Holstein Association at 1-800-952-5200.

club president, with a 107.4-percent BAA.

In third was Joy-Wil Holstein, owned by John Hostetter, with a 106.3-percent BAA.

In other business, Dave Lentz, regional field representative for the national Holstein Association, discussed some of the new programs and changes within the association.

After taking an informal poll of the members to find out what topics they already knew about, he provided some detail and brochures on the association's new Tri-Star program — a system of assigning merit to dairy herd improvement association record-keeping programs in light of the changes with National DHIA rules.

He said that Clarance Stauffer, who has been a long-time national association representative, has been promoted to cattle marketing coordinator for Eastern United States.

Lentz, originally of Lebanon County, had worked in the South Eastern region as a Holstein represenative for several years and is continuing to cover some southern states, as well as north into Pennsylvania. He recently moved to Duncanon.

Bill Allen, Pennsylvania Holstein Association director of sales, talked about export potential and domestic sales opportunities. He said that those with well-bred animals should contact the association. He said some bids were made on export contracts and there are a number of potential sales for this fall through spring.

He also said that the farm at Middletown is doing well, and that the association has been able to better support the facility through leasing it for other groups who have exporting business.

Members were also reminded of the Nov. 15 Nitany Sale with about 70 lots offered.

Steve Dietrich, Chester County Extension dairy agent, said he appreciated the warm reception he received in his first year as the new dairy agent.

He also announced that on Dec. 12 a special dairy program is being offered at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland. He said a Cornell University dairy professor is to speak on what it will take to survive in the dairy business in the next century.

He also announced the county's 1998 dairy day event is to be held Jan. 8 with speakers Robert Yonkers, a Penn State Extension agricultural and rural economist, and Dan McFarland, a Penn State agricultural engineer. More will be announced closer to the date.

Jane Pebble, the county club's state director, said that members have until Nov. 1 to renew membership and take advantage of an early discount.

She also reminded members that policy has changed and that membership benefits are now to stop when membership runs out, at the end of the year. In the past, benefits continued until March 1.

She said that consideration should be given to nomination of delegates to the 1998 national Holstein Association convention to be held in Louisville, Kentucky.

Members were also reminded that the state Junior Holstein convention is to be held Feb. 6-8 in Uniontown, while the regular PHA convention is to be held Feb. 25-27 in Greensburg.

It was also announced that an adult has expressed interest in coaching a county dairy bowl team, if enough interest is expressed by youth. Those interested should contact a club officer.

Dairylea Presents Youth Awards

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Amanda Moody of Troy, N.Y., and Christopher Beeman of Kingsley, recently were awarded Dairylea Cooperative's Fred H. Sexauer Awards. The two recipients were honored at the Cooperative's Annual Meeting Family Banquet held October 14.

The awards are in memory of Fred H. Sexauer, who served as president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association — now Dairylea Cooperative Inc. — from 1928-1945. The awards are presented annually to Dairylea youths who exhibit outstanding service and leadership skills, and show a demonstrated spirit of cooperation.

Amanda Moody, daughter of Dairylea members Bruce and Lynne Moody, currently attends the State University of New York at Cobleskill, where she studies animal science. After earning an associate's degree, Amanda plans to attend Cornell University, where she will complete her studies to become a large animal veterinarian.

Amanda has been active in athletics and school organizations, holding various leadership positions within the Southern Livestock 4-H Club, including the office of President. In addition, she participates in the daily operations of the family dairy farm, assisting with milking and supervising veterinarian checks.

Christopher Beeman, son of Dairylea District 8 Director William Beeman and his wife, Virginia, is a sophomore at the University of Richmond, in Virginia. He studies business administration and marketing and hopes to attend graduate school for business upon graduation.

Throughout his high school years, Christopher held numerous leadership positions on athletic teams, as well as in school and church organizations. Additionally, he was a youth scholar to the National Council of Farmer Cooperative's National Institute on Cooperative Education. A sports enthusiast, he currently works on campus in the sports information and marketing office. When at home, Christopher helps out on the family's dairy farm, particularly with the field work.

Mattilio Brings New Perspective

annually.

A major promotion project is in the works. The association is spending $11,000 for Smokey Roberts Film and Videos to produce an educational video to be distributed to schools in 1998. The Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture donated $5,000 for the film project.

"Now I know why Hollywood movies cost so much," Mattilio said of the project."

Mattilio is enthusiastic about the project. He said the video is educational, but the comedy format appeals to people of all ages and done in a way that will not become outdated for many years.

Last year, the board struggled with the decision to designate that amount for promotion, but Mattilio said as treasurer he sees that money isn't doing any good just lying there.

"It is not how much money we have in the treasury but how much we are helping the industry," he said. "Our goal is to help the industry by spending the money on the right things."

Another $12,000 was spent to buy a new food booth this year. The Ephrata Fair Food Booth is the primary fund raiser for the industry. Poultry dishes such as chicken corn soup, turkey barbecue, and chicken breast sandwiches are sold.

The board wants the food booth to be used at more fairs and public events.

The board also selects a poultry representative to hand out recipes and prepare egg omelets for promotional work. Each year the association prints recipe brochures to hand out.

The annual banquet serves a variety of purposes. A year-end financial report is given. It is a social activity where people learn to know others associated with the poultry industry, and where the board members are elected.

The Association sponsors radio ads and promotional events at food shows and fairs.

In the spring, home economists and family strength teachers are invited to a banquet where they are taught the latest research concerning egg and poultry consumption.

"We are sort of a grassroots organization and believe strongly in getting information into the hands of the people who are reaching the next generation," Mattilio said.

The association also holds an annual Poultry Progress Day, the largest and most attended one-day educational poultry event of this type in the Northeast.

In addition, the association offers a scholarship to a student in the poultry science program at Penn State, and provides money for 4-H embryology projects held in 200 school classrooms.

"We want constructive criticism," Mattilio said of the board, which meets the first Monday night of every month at the Farm and Home Center. "We want ideas from members. This is their association. If there are things they think we should be doing differently, we need feedback," he said. The board meetings are open for members to attend.

Mattilio, his wife Melissa, and daughters Chloe, 2, and Clare, 9 months, live in a bilevel home surrounded by farmland. Their home reflects their shared love for family and agriculture. Angus beef posters and horse pictures decorate their walls. Toys and toddler-related items fill the rooms. Pumpkins and gourds that Mattilio grew in the garden are gathered outside.

Since his wife works as assistant marketing manager for Turkey Hill Dairies, Mattilio said he and his wife work together as a team in cooking, household duties, and in caring for their daughters.

"I believe in working hard during the day generating assets for the bank and keeping customers happy, but I try to be home at a reasonable time every evening to be with my family. I try to be careful where I spend my time," he said. "I don't play golf but I do like deer hunting. It's my only hobby."

The Mattilios attend Manor Brethren-in-Christ Church.

Franklin County Hosltein Club To Tour Maryland Farms

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Franklin County Hosltein Club has scheduled a Nov. 11 tour of farms in Maryland to see Excellent and Very Good cows, and different and remodeled facilities.

Deadline for registration for the tour is Nov. 4. The fee is $12 per person, which covers the cost of bus transportation.

A large buffet lunch is to be provided for tour participants at 2:15 p.m., compliments of Protiva, a unit of Monsanto Corp.

A 47-passenger bus has been reserved, and reservations are being taken on a first-come basis.

According to Philip Wagner, dairy agent with the Cooperative Extension of Franklin County, participants do not need to be a member of the Franklin Holstein Club.

The tour is open to any dairy producer or industry person who would like to attend.

Those interested can call Marcus Martin, tour chairman, at (717) 328-5544.

The one-day tour is to visit four different Holstein farms in Carroll and Frederick counties in Maryland.

There are to be two departure sites.

The bus is to leave the parking lot of the Franklin County Extension Office in Chambersburg (191 Franklin Farm Lane) at 9 a.m., and head for the Greencastle Livestock Market, where it will depart at 9:20 a.m.

With a target arrival time of 10:30 a.m., the first farm to be visited is to be Coldsprings Farm, owned by the Marlin Hoff family.

Coldsprings Farm milks 630 cows and has a rolling herd average of 22,870 pounds of milk. They use a computerized Dairy Herd Improvement Association records system. They also have consignments to the "Top 10 Sale." Also to be seen are a new shop and office complex, new bunker silos and a commodity building.

Mattilio Brings

Mattilio also serves as finance chairman for the animal housing expo held annually in Lebanon and is on the advisory boards with some agricultural companies.

Mattilio recalls the first time that he saw Lancaster County. He had met his wife-to-be at Penn State where she was studying ag sciences. On his first trip to Melissa's horse farm in the county, he was amazed to see so many well-kept farms and modern facilities.

"Not only do we have good resources here, but the people are so productive and tremendously efficient in all aspects of life. They are involved in church and ag meetings.

This past year has been a difficult one for poultry farmers and the industry as they have battled an outbreak of avian influenza, which has resulted in cancelling the Northeast Poultry Show both this year and next year.

Mattilio believes the upcoming annual banquet will be important for farmers and industry members to attend.

The Lancaster County Poultry Association Banquet will be held Tues. Oct. 28 at 6:30 p.m. at Willow Valley Convention Center Palm Court. If you want to attend, call (717) 394-6851 for reservations immediately.

Mattilio is available at his office, (717) 291-3641, or at home, (717) 684-6255.

B. Snavely Garber's Stories Fascinate Young And Old

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — B. Snavely Garber has never been quiet or lazy.

It stands to reason that at 85 years of age, he has no intention of adopting a life of leisurely retirement.

Lauded as a master farmer, inventor, and a founder of the West Lampeter Community Fair are only a few of his accomplishments that preceded his graduation as a nurse's aide at 65 years of age and in authoring a book at 81 years of age.

Snavely is a talking history book, overflowing with memories that chronicle farm life in the Willow Street area.

His book, "75 Years Of Farm Life On The Willows Farm," is written in conversational style, typed by his daughter Dorothy on a word processor. What the 152-page book lacks in professional finesse, it makes up for in the personal glimpses and hundreds of pictures interspersed throughout the text.

In his first few years, Benjamin Snavely Garber was called Ben. But his father, who was also named Ben, feared that he would soon be known as old Ben Garber. So it was decided to call his son Snavely.

When he was four, Snavely's mother died at age 34, leaving a husband and seven children. His Aunt Amanda Book Snavely, 43, and husband Harry Snavely, 45, were childless, and gladly took the three youngest to raise as their own. This included Mary, 5, Snavely, 4, and Maude, 13 months.

Life was exciting on his uncle's 120-acre farm, with 12 Guernsey cows, 20 head of young stock, Hampshire swine, six brood sows, 16 steers, chickens, and 12 hives bees.

Tales of a happy, carefree childhood interspersed with chores and trips are intertwined with a bit of family and farming history.

Snavely's "inventor" skill showed up early in school pranks such as rigging up the victrola to play in the middle of a class period and in rigging up a light to go on when the locker door opened.

The first West Lampeter Community Fair opened in 1924, when Snavely was 12 years old. School was closed for a week so that the students could participate in fair activities.

Throughout his lifetime, Snavely has continued to play an active role in the fair. He served on the board for many years and founded the Yesterday's Farm Machinery Exhibit and "Grandma & Grandpa's Old Things" to remember the past.

Active in FFA, Snavely received the Keystone Degree and was graduated in 1932 from West Lampeter Vocational School.

After graduation, Snavely farmed with his uncle. They put up a 34-stall dairy barn to increase the size of the herd, and updated equipment.

Snavely remembers that they first used contour strip farming after planting eight acres of tomatoes that washed out on the road. The 80-acre field was shaped like a turtle's back. They made a circular field on top of the hub and 10-acre strips on the contour around it.

Picking so many acres of tomatoes by hand was tiring. One time, Snavely complained about the endless picking. His uncle admonished, "Keep quiet until you find a better way."

Snavely did. He rigged up a way to pick tomatoes using a truck-powered moveable belt that carried ripe tomatoes to the baskets on the truck bed near the steering wheel. One man stacked the filled baskets while six people in adjustable hammocks picked the tomatoes from six rows as the machine moved slowly over them.

That September, a photographer stopped by in a taxicab to take some pictures. Later that year, much to Snavely's surprise, his tomato picker invention appeared on a film that was titled "Stranger than Fiction."

Snavely raised purebred Hampshire swine and showed the grand champion pig at Farm Show. The prize money provided a honeymoon to Florida in 1937, when Snavely married Barbara Rohrer.

The couple moved in with Snavely's Uncle Harry and farmed on shares with him.

Snavely's wife was a hard worker. She recalls that she milked 11 cows by hand the evening that the couple's son Kenneth was born. They also had a daughter Dorothy.

The Guernsey cows were first milked by hand. Later a separator and then a milking parlor changed the methods of milking.

"I preferred Guernsey cows, for their rich yellow butter color and pleasant nature," Snavely said.

Although guineas are seldom found on many farms, Snavely considers the noisy bird to be the best watchdog possible.

As always, farming continued to change. Faster and better ways were found to manage. Tidbits on the evolution of corn harvesting, haymaking, working through the night to harvest peas for their vegetable freezing business, and inventions for making work easier appear in the book.

In the book, Snavely's sister Mary Garber Mosemann wrote about "women's work" such as canning, corn drying, sauerkraut making, butchering, dressing chickens, making corn meal and noodles, egg preservation, whitewashing, apple butter making, wash day, sweeping carpets with brooms before vacuum cleaners, scouring tinware each spring and fall and hanging it on the fence to dry, then polishing it until it looked like silver.

In his lifetime, Snavely was lauded as a master farmer, inventor, and board member of many ag and church related organizations. He was 65 years old when he took a vo-tech course in nursing, and 81 when he wrote a book. He and his wife still fascinate guests who stay in their home through the tourist home his daughter, Dorothy Charles, operates. He still likes to help on the family farm that his son, Ken, operates.

In 1927, his Uncle Harry Snavely had been one of the first farmers to become a master farmer. Snavely was surprised and delighted when he was named a Master Farmer in 1955.

Snavely's son Kenneth gradually took over farming Willows Farm. But Snavely continues to help out. When he was 81 years old, he was bedding heifers when he was hit by a plank and knocked unconscious. He survived that and still tries to do more on the farm than the family believes he should be doing.

In 1992, the dairy cattle were

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Snavely and Barbara Garber still have the milk stool that Barbara used when she milked 11 cows by hand the night their son was born.

Surrendering his driver's license was not easy for Snavely. He now spends many hours on his riding lawn mower, which he uses not only to cut grass for several of the family members whose homes adjoin his but also as a mode of transportation. Willows Farm is in the background.

sold because the grandchildren and children developed other interests. But Snavely's son Ken and his two sons continue to farm 200 acres and operate Garber Transport at Willows Farm.

In 1993, the farm's barn and buildings burned to the ground when two young firemen who had worked on the farm set a fire. The barn and implement and storage sheds were rebuilt.

Memories written by the children, spouses, and grandchildren are recorded in the book, which reflects the close-knit family and the high regard they continue to have for each other.

At 65 years of age, Snavely took a nurse's aide course, the only male among 19 classmates at the vocational school. After graduation, he nursed numerous elderly friends in their homes.

After his son took over the main responsibility for the farm, Snavely hauled tourists in his covered wagon at the Amish Farm and House.

For many years, Barbara helped make menus for the Willow Street School, served hot lunches at Lampeter School, helped with the Mother's Club's yearly ham supper, held a Good News Club for children, and was active in sewing circle.

She kept things running smoothly on the farm when Snavely was busy with community activities. Other associations in which Snavely has held an active role include Eastern States Farmers Exchange, Farm and Home Center, Hans Herr House, and one of the first 25 members of Camp Hebron. He was also active at Willow Street Mennonite Church as a trustee, Sunday school teacher, usher, and chairman of building committee. He was a member of the artificial breeder's cooperative and visited Africa.

Snavely and his wife started a tourist home in the 1960s that his daughter continues today. In fact, overflow guests are often booked at Snavely and Barbara's brick ranch-style home, which faces the family farm.

Talking is something that Snavely is still able to do well. And guests are fascinated with his stories.

Snavely continues to keep busy, mowing the grass on several family members properties and using the lawn mower as a mode of transportation.

He said of his struggle in being forced to surrender his driver's license, "When you get my age, you need to learn to be very submissive."

Now that he is unable to drive, Snavely spends a lot of time sorting pictures into chronological order and compiling stories to go with the pictures.

For a copy of his book, "75 Years of Farm Life on the Willows Farm," send $7 a book, plus $2 for shipping and handling in a check with your name and address to Mrs. John W. Charles, 1529 Eshelman Mill Rd., Willow Street, PA 17584. Questions? Call her at (717) 464-4884.

Snavely celebrates his 85th birthday during the West Lampeter Community Fair. He attended the first fair held in the community and became a staunch supporter, board member, and founder of the Yesterday's Farm Machinery Exhibit. With him are great grandchildren and other family members.

Fall Care of Peonies

Gardeners have enjoyed the common garden, chinese fernleaf, or tree peonies since the 1800s. Fortunately the peony is easy to grow, hardy, and dependable. Gardeners value the peony for its large, colorful flowers in spring and attractive, season-long foliage.

Gardeners should leave peonies undisturbed in the garden for many years. When peionies become shaded by large trees and stop blooming, these plants should be moved to a sunny site in the fall. The redesign of a perennial bed or border may require moving the peonies. Large, old plants may become overcrowded and flower poorly. Large, poorly blooming peonies should be dug, the thickly fleshy roots divided and transplanted in well-prepared soil.

Moving established plants is a simple procedure. Cut the peony stems near ground level in September or October. Then carefully dig around and under each plant. Try to retain as much of the thick fleshy root system as possible. Promptly replant the peony in a sunny, well-drained site.

Dividing large peony clumps requires digging up the plant, gently shaking the clump to remove loose soil and using a sharp knife to cut the clump into sections. Each section should have at least three to five buds (eyes) and a good portion of the root system.

Peonies perform best in full sun and well-drained soils. When selecting a new planting site, choose an area that receives full sun. Avoid shady areas under large trees and shrubs. Improve drained soils by working in large amounts of compost and peat in the fall. Avoid deep cultivation when adding peat or compost.

When planting the common garden peonies, dig a hole large enough for the entire root system (8-10 inches deep). Place the peony plant in the hole so the buds are no more than 2 inches below the soil surface. (Poenies often fail to bloom satisfactorily if the buds are more than 2 inches deep). Space each clumb 3 foot apart. Fill the hole with soil, firming the soil around the plant as you backfill. Then water thoroughly.

In late fall (November) apply a 2- to 4-inch layer of mulch over the newly planted or established peonies. Straw is an excellent mulch. Mulching will prevent repeated freezing and thawing of the soil during the winter months that could damage the plants. Remove the mulch in early spring before growth begins.

Transplanted peonies will not bloom well the first spring. In fact, it's advisable to remove any flower buds that form the first year to maximize plant growth. Transplanted peonies should bloom well by the third or fourth year.

Once established in the garden, peonies require very little care. Fertilize peonies in early spring with a 5-10-5 fertilizer. Lightly sprinkle one-fourth cup of fertilizer around each plant.

For tree peonies, protect the root system and main trunk in the winter with a layer of mulch or shredded leaves. Prune satems to encourage a good shape. Remove any suckers growing from the rootstock with a sharp pruner.

Don't Squash These Recipes

Pumpkins and squash abound this time of the year. While weather conditions this summer were not favorable to record yields, growers report that the quality is still good.

Pumpkins come in all shapes and sizes. While large jack-o'-latern-type pumpkins can be cooked for pies or other recipes, their flesh is stringy and the eating quality is poor compared to the smaller pie-type pumpkins.

Pumpkins are close relatives to winter squash and most commercially prepared "pumpkin" is actually winter squash. Neck pumpkins (which are really squash), butternut, and Hubbard squashes all make tasty "pumpkin" dishes.

Pumpkin or squash can be cooked a number of ways. After splitting the fruit and removing the seeds and attached strings, the flesh can be cut out of the rind and cubed. The cubed flesh can be boiled, steamed, microwaved until tender and then mashed.

For the smaller varieties, the fruit can be cut in half. After scooping out the seeds, the halves should be placed cut-side up in a shallow pan with a small amount of water or simply on a baking sheet, covered with foil and baked in a hot oven until the flesh is tender. The cooked flesh can be scooped out and mashed for use in recipes or a little butter and brown sugar can be placed on top of the halved squash during the baking process and the squash served as is.

Pumpkin and squash are good sources of vitamin A, although squash generally has more than pumpkin and can ususally be substituted for pumpkin in recipes.

Both have good amounts of fiber and help fulfill the recommended three to five servings of vegetables per day.

New varieties of squash are attracting squash-lovers attention. Two new varieties that are sure to please your palate are Ambercup and Autumm Cup.

Ambercup resembles a Kabocha in shape, is a high yielding variety with long shelf life ane exceptional in quality. It features bright orange color even throughout cooking, superior buttercup quality, and a deliciously distinctive flavor. When mashed and whipped, ambercup has almost the same texture, smoothness, and consistency of the best fresh mashed potatoes.

Autumn Cup is a more traditional buttercup variety, features a compact semi bush plant habit and concentrated fruit set making this variety well suited for the home garden. It produces three to four fruit per plant, and the reduced button at the blossom end results in more deep orange, high quality meat.

The simplest way to cook squash is often the best way when trying new varieties, and for winter squash, that means baking slowly in a 350 degree oven. However, both varieties may be used in your favorite squash recipes.

Try this.

AMBERCUP WINTER SQUASH

Thoroughly scrub the outside of the squash to remove dirt.

Cut each into about eight pieces — do not peel.

Remove seeds and any other stringly pulp from the interior.

Place in a covered saucepan with a small amount of water and simmer for about 15 minutes or until tender.

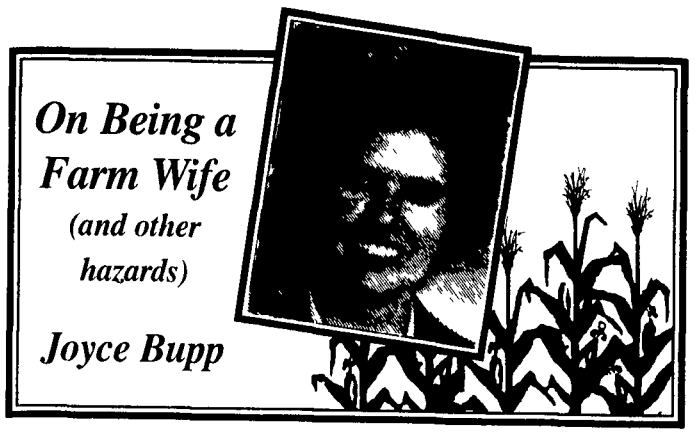
When done, drain and cool until the pieces can be comfortably handled. Remove the flesh and discard the skin. A small amount of skin left in the cooked squash will cause no problem since it is so tender that, when whipped, it is also edible.

Return the flesh to a clean saucepan. Whip with an electric mixer, adding butter, milk or cream, brown sugar salt and pepper to taste. Stir it frequently, reheating to serving temperature over low heat and serve immediately.

Refrigerated leftovers can be successfully reheated slowly over very low heat. Since the dry matter of this variety is so high, additional milk or cream will probably need to be added during reheating.

AUTUMN CUP

To cook, scrub and remove crown end, do not peel. Discard seeds, place in baking dish with ½ -inch in water. Bake in 350 degrees oven until tender. Discard skin, whip flesh, and season to taste.



Our customers keep arriving at a steady pace.

But the clientele is changing over the last several days. And we're welcoming back some old friends.

When we first began feeding birds, it was a mostly-wintertime endeavor. Once late spring had arrived, after the trees leafed out, the grass demanded at least weekly mowing and garden and fieldwork activities took center stage, putting seed out for the songbirds usually took a backseat to other pressing chores.

That changed in recent years, as birds continued to visit the feeder right on through the summer season, and raised a ruckus if they arrived on the back porch to find only an empty plate. Guilt hung especially heavy in early mornings and late evenings, when the irate chirps of the cardinals protested the absence of the expected sunflower seeds. So, in the last few years, filling the birdfeeder continues as a daily ritual, regardless of whether the temperatures are minus 10 or 90 degree plus. The cardinals have won the battle and the birdseed storage cans (originally filled with gifts of popcorn) are kept stocked year round.

Nevertheless, a new season has begun.

A nuthatch announced that late last week, as it waddled down the side of a maple tree and then flitted to the feeder just outside the kitchen window to take inventory of the lunch menu. It was the first nuthatch to pay a visit since warm weather moved in months ago. Equally surprising was that the titmice had also come to dine just hours before, though they did make sporadic appearances over the last couple of months.

Special favorites of mine, the petite, friendly and irrespressible chickadees, likewise returned last week. Also, the bossy and boisterous bluejays, of which we saw very few even last winter, have turned up to stuff their cheeks with black oil seeds.

Meanwhile, the cardinals, which raised a nest of babies somewhere nearby, are noticeably absent for the moment. For a couple of weeks in late summer, cardinals the color of a female, but lacking the bright orange beak of the mature ones, arrived at the feeder. They seemed a bit hesitant at first but eventually settled in to feed with the finches and sparrows that hang out there incessantly.

We assume they're temporarily rounding out their diets with natural tidbits and delicacies of the season and will be back as fall fodder diminishes.

A dove or two continue to feed regularly, though fewer than we had prior to the early dove hunting season. These beautiful, gentle-looking birds... aren't. Gentle, that is. Somewhere along the way, they picked up a bit of the bossiness of bluejays, even to the point of running each other away from the feeder at times. It's so out of character that it's funny.

But the most striking bird behavior we've observed this year is that of a Canada goose.

The hatch of goslings that our returning pair of wild geese raised this year took wing in mid-August. Probably, they joined the groups that pass overhead most evenings at dusk, enroute to Lake Redman for the night.

One single goose, however, came to the pond several weeks ago and has remained. All by itself. It turned up just after the first day of early, local goose season, so I assumed it had been injured. We have seen no visible signs of a wound and have not tried to catch it to check, lest we injure it. It flies from one end of the pond to the other and seems to be able to swim with no problem. I have never actually seen it walk.

Each time a flock flies overhead, this is one bird visitor I hope will depart, and lift off with a honk to join others of its own kind.

It would be nice to be able to write a happy ending to this puzzling goose tale.

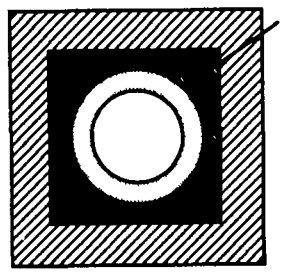
... For New Construction Why Not Examine The "Chimtek Difference."



Chimtek Inner Liners are made of volcanic pumice and high-tempertature refractory cements. Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimteck liners adds considerable insulating value

All three chimneyliner systems disbritubed by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

Pumpkins Are Perfect For Plenty Of Reasons

Ever since Native Americans taught early settlers how to plant pumpkin, people have been fascinated with pumpkins.

Pumpkins taste great—even the seeds. Pumpkins make great projects for arts and crafts projects.

A book "The Perfect Pumpkin" includes lots of craft projects including painted pumpkins, candleholders, pumpkin soap, and of course, jack-o'-lanterns. Selecting, carving, shading, and lighting these emblems of autumn is covered in minute detail.

There are now 95 varieties of pumpkins. Instructions for starting seeds indoors and transplanting, watering, and feeding, tips for avoiding and controlling the most common pumpkin pests, and harvesting the produce are included in the book.

The book also has 25 pumpkin recipes.

"The Perfect Pumpkin" is available for $12.95 in most bookstores. Or order from Storey Communications, Inc., P.O. Box 445, Pownal, Vermont 05261 or call 800-441-5700, Dept. YP, or log on to www.Storey.com.

Nightmare on Venus Street?
Pumpkins carved into jack-o'-lantern faces can be pretty scary, but the Venus fly trap rates high on the fright scale, too — especially for insects that get caught in its leaves
Venus fly traps are part of a group of plants called carnivorous plants (Say car-NIV-ah-rus It means meat-eater)
These special plants tend to grow in areas where the soil is really bad So, they catch insects to get a little extra nutrition A bug a week for a Venus fly trap acts just like fertilizer for houseplants
The leaves of a Venus fly trap are an insect's worst nightmare Each leaf has two halves that look like the palm of your hand Each palm has three sensitive hairs on the inside, and long, cactus-like barbs running along the edges
When a fly triggers the sensitive hairs as it searches for nectar, the plant sends out a kind of electrical charge that snaps the leaf trap shut As the insect struggles, the trap closes even more tightly Eventually, the edges of the trap seal against each other so tight that you can see the outline of the fly through the leaf The leaf then breaks down the insect's soft parts with a special digestive juice and soaks up the liquid nutrition
Carnivorous plants eat all sorts of insects like flies, wasps and bees Extremely large plants might even capture a small lizard or frog But don't worry if you find a Venus fly trap in the wild — there's no such thing as people-eating plants!

Preventing Household Poisoning

Each year there are four million poisonings reported nationally to the Poison Control Centers. Ninty-five percent occur in the home, and many are from common household items which have been accidentally misused.

Families like to think of their homes as safe places to live, work and play. With a little care they can be just that and more. But, we must be aware of the potential dangers that lurk in the cupboards, closets, cellars, and garages.

All products in the home have the potential to poison when misused. Some common poisons found in homes today are laundry/cleaning products, vitamins, medication, make-up, plants and gardening and auto products. These products may come in a variety of forms like liquids, sprays, gases, or solids.

Now for the good news! Our homes can be safe places to live if we take a few precautions in the use and storage of poisonous materials:

- Never call medication candy.
- Use "safety lock" tops on medication.
- Store poisons out of sight and reach of young children.
- Lock poisons in cabinets if possible.
- Store poisons away from foods.
- Keep products labeled and in original containers.
- Be careful when using hazardous products. Most poisonings occur when poisonous products are in use.
- Do not reuse containers that once held poisons.
- Always use good light and read labels carefully.

By removing the potential for carelessness, we can prevent many poisonings.

Have you walked through your home looking for potential safety hazards? Take a few moments to poison proof your home. Key places to check are the kitchen, bathroom, bedroom, garage, basement, and storage areas. If you find a hazardouis situation, make corrections immediately.

For those times when accidents do occur, have an action plan in place. It may save a life. If an accidental poisoning occurs:

1. Act quickly - Stay calm.

2. Call the Poison Control Center immediately. Place a "Mr. Yuk" sticker on the phone. (Stickers are available from your Poison Control Center.)

3. Have the following information available: • the name of the substance involved • the amount of the substance • the time the poisoning occurred • the age and gender of the patient • any symptoms that are present • your name and telephone number.

4. Listen carefully - follow instructions from the Poison Center staff. * The majority of poison exposures can be safely handled at home.

Information on "Preventing Household Poisoning" is available by sending a self-addressed stamped business envelope to Becky Scotland, Penn State Extension - Chester County, Government Services Center #370, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester, PA 19382.

Meet The Meat Man

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "The most expensive meat doesn't mean it's the best," said Vic Chmura.

As he expertly sliced apart three different cuts of meat, he added, "Fancy names usually mean pricey tags.'

The brightest red ground beef doesn't meat it's better than a duller color, nor does advertised ground sirloin guarantee it really is ground from sirloin roast.

"There's a big difference in taste between a young grain-fed and a 10-year-old cow," he said.

"And beef ground from the neck or shin will be lean and brighter but not as tasty as that ground from a sirloin roast," he said.

Are you confused at the meat counter? Do the many different cuts of meats, the broad spectrum of prices for the same cuts of meat, frustrate you?

Then Vic Chmura is the person to talk to.

A butcher for 30 years, Vic will be speaking at the upcoming seminar "Meet the Meat Man." Sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) of Ephrata on Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. at the Ephrata Church of the Brethren, the seminar will include lots of handouts, recipes, and even a taste-testing seminar.

Vic operates V&M Country Pride Meats at The Artworks in Ephrata. Vic is more than a butcher by trade. He's a teacher when it comes to helping consumers differentiate among the many cuts of meat and sort out good buys from bogus advertising.

Fancy names to dress up meats often cost the consumer more money but don't mean they taste better, according to Vic.

Vic has a passion to educate consumers, and has taught many classes in other areas, but this is the first time that he will be teaching a class in the Ephrata area.

Vic Chmura, a butcher for 30 years, will be teaching at the upcoming seminar "Meet the Meat Man." Sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC) of Ephrata on Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. at the Ephrata Church of the Brethren, the seminar will include lots of handouts, recipes, and even taste-testing.

The same cut of meat can vary from $1.59-$3.39 a pound. "Price is a gimmick," he said of supermarkets' attempts to lure people into their stores with advertised low meat prices.

Consumers may purchase three-pounds of ground beef. After frying that amount may be reduced by half, considering how much fat is connected to it.

"Are you getting a bargain if you fry it and lose half of it to fat?" he asked.

Always demand to see both sides of a piece of meat. Many prepackaged meats look great on one side, but when the package is open and the meat turned over, it may be almost all bone or fat on the other side. This means the consumer is paying a high price for an inedible pieces.

Because consumers are often dissatisfied with the taste of highly advertised low-priced meats, Vic forsees a trend in consumers returning to a family butcher.

"They need to have confidence and trust in the butcher. A butcher will not lie to a consumer because repeat business is important to him. A consumer should be able to ask a butcher questions and expect help in selecting the right piece to serve at a dinner."

It's Vic's desire to help consumers know how to purchase the best for the amount of money.

"By the time those who attend my workshop are ready to leave, they are able to identify the different cuts and the difference between choice and prime cuts," he said.

After meat is purchased, it is important to know how cut and cook the meat; otherwise, a perfectly good piece of meat can taste tough.

"Always cut with a sharp knife. You don't need a fancy handle, just a sharp blade," he said. Sharpening knives should be done by professionals. Contrary to public misconception, a steel honing tube is not a sharpening tool but a straightening tool to bring the edge back.

"Always cut crossgrain," Vic said. While teaching, he shows how a dull knife can mangle a piece of beef. He teaches students

No Imagination? Walk Cautiously Around Eva Strang

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

KANTER (Somerset Co.) - If you have no imagination, and worse, no inclination to build one into your insipid life, you may be left in the dust by the lively one of Eva Strang, teacher of North Star East Elementary School's fourth grade.

"You can't come into my classroom without imagination," are the words on a sign outside her door that opens toward — she says — "The only washable tree in the school district."

She herself, ran it up on her sewing machine, the tree, that is, to recycle the material from a worn bedspread.

Imaginative guests, however, are invited to venture deeper into Mrs. Strang's world called "The Tree House," where twining vines travel across the ceiling, small trees grow, disreputable sneakers are beautified holders for potted plants; abondoned hornet's nests, fish and turtle aquariums, bird houses and nests, even a bone or two, make Eva's classroom a highly unique educational laboratory.

But that's barely scratching the surface of all that's germinating on any given day in the mind of the "Teacher of the Year," so named by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Young Farmer and Rancher Committee.

In summer 1996, Eva, who inherited a love of growing things from her father while quite young, participated in Ag in the Classroom at Penn State.

"Seeds have always fascinated me," she declares. "There is always something magic in when a seed germinates."

The magic continues through the plant's growth stages until it dies and leaves behind the seeds for a new cycle of life.

Flowers are her personal preference and her artistry with them around her Johnstown home has attracted garden clubs from other areas to schedule visits.

She, herself, is a member of the Johnstown Garden Club, has for six years been named Penn State Master Gardner, and is co-chairman of Sage Herbalists of the Laurel Highlands, which she and two other persons founded.

Because her own childhood gardening experiences were wonderful, it's easy to inspire her pupils. In turn, they have inspired their parents with the ideas they carry home in their fertile young minds.

A few years ago Eav developed a very interesting project with her class that she has since repeated each year.

They raise a garden outside their window in an area that isn't necessary for anything important.

"In the fall of 1993, I became obsessed," Eva says about her idea for a project. She needed something in view of her windows, she said.

Because of a drainage system there, she knew that digging in the soil would be impossible.

"Problem solving is one of the things in gardening," she observed.

From a helpful friend who no longer needed them, she got 14 big bubble tires. She envisioned each being shared by two kids.

They used recycling materials, sheet plastic, coat hangers, chicken wire fencing, talked to businesses and got top soil and mulch for the top.

Fred Strang, her husband and a well-known square dance caller, helped locate plastic buckets so the kids could store their gardening tools when not using them.

A meticulous planner, Eva diagrammed her plan on paper and at the outset kept everything tidy in a durable and accurately labeled, photo album.

The experiment was so successful that Eva's horticulturalists sponsored a fall flower show at their school.

After that, they planned their garden around a theme, like their pizza garden that sprouted with all manner of luscious pizza veggies. Yes, they later made pizza.

Outer space with the theme one year. Every plant sown had a relevant name — North Star and Jupiter peppers, Sunflowers, etc.

Sending kids to the garden is the biggest reward. They really enjoy it," Eva reports, adding, "I consider it good physical exercise, as well."

Lest folks gain the impression that only "little angels" worked in the outer space garden Eve, admits the biggest problem she encountered from them was "noise behavior."

Another idea was to build a bug with fruits and veggies.

After the crops are harvested, parents and their school mates are invited to enjoy a show of some kind that the class presents.

This view of Eva Strang's tree house classroom shows the Science Corner and one of the hornet nests located there.

Eva's work has resulted in the formation of the "Tree House Garden Club," a junior organization operating under the Johnstown Garden Club.

Her students learned about composting; that flowers are necessary to provide a new generation of plants; that not all seeds germinate, but must be of high quality and appropriate to local climate; plants are the source of our food and plants are used to protect and improve soil.

On Arbor Day, with 24 donated seedlings, the kids planted pines to form a windbreak at their school building.

Eva, in her own report to the Young Farmers and Ranchers, detailed how agricluture found its way into alomst all areas of the curriculum — language arts, social studies, mathematics, science, health and art.

Not only that, she wrote a page about student behavior and attitude changes towards agriculture and wrote about their projects that helped the community and made money, as well.

"I want to keep the motivation gong," states the educator, an alumna of the district where she has worked for 27 years.

Meet The Meat Man

to identify the proper way to cut crossgrain. Butchers, he said, actually cut what is considered a double crosscut, which is accomplished by cutting crossgrain on an angle.

Vic is a firm believer that quality meat should not be marinated. "There is no substitute for quality. Marinated meat can drown out the meat flavor," he said.

Vic said he selected a career in butchering because he believed that no matter how bad the economy, people always need to eat.

Over the years, he has attended many seminars and meat cutting schools to keep up with the latest trends and to perfect his skills.

He recommends that people tour meat plants. "I've been in many meat plants that are so clean, I wouldn't hesistate to pick up a piece of meat that has dropped on the floor and eat it," he said. Because of temperature controls at all levels and the strict cleanliness enforced in meat plants and packing houses, Vic believes meat butchered commercially is generally safer to eat than that butchered on the family farm.

Working with Vic at the seminar will be Leslie Cline of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and Rick Fetrow of Iowa Beef Packers.

E-coli and ways to avoid the bacteria-induced diseased will also be discussed.

The seminar serves as a fundraiser for the GFWC Woman's Club. A $6 admission is charged. The profits will go for charity.

Tickets for the event are available from Mary Garret, 721 N. Maple St., Ephrata, PA 17522. Or call her at (717) 733-4623.

Lebanon FSA, NRCS Set CRP Meeting

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Farm Service Agency (FSA) and Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) have announced a public meeting to inform Lebanon County producers and landowners about the Conservation Reserve Program's (CRP) 16th Sign-up, which will be held Oct. 14 to Nov. 14, 1997.

Though sign-up has already begun, the public meeting will be held on Oct. 29, at 10 a.m. at the Lebanon Valley Agricultural Center.

The meeting will cover benefits offered and producer requirements under the 16th Sign-Up. All those interested in participating in the CRP are encouraged to attend.

The new environmentally-focused CRP provides immediate benefits to producers and taxpayers through reduced soil erosion, improved water quality and expanded wildlife habitat.

Under this voluntary program, landowners enter into contracts with USDA to place erodible and other environmentally-sensitive cropland in conservation practices for 10-15 years. In exchange, landowners receive annual rental payments for the land and cost-share assistance for establishing those practices.

All land that is enrolled in the program must compete for acceptance based on an environmental benefits index that ensures fair and equal consideration for all types of land.

If you haven't participated in the CRP or any other USDA programs previously, you are especially encouraged to attend the public meeting to obtain information about the program. This will be your best opportunity to find out what you need to know to bid for a contract.

Representatives from NRCS and FSA will be available to answer all your questions, so that you can make an informed decision on what best suits your operation.

We want to sign up every qualifying applicant. All landowners should consider enrolling their eligible environmentally sensitive land in the new CRP. It is best to have your questions answered early in the sign up period.

Interested producers and owners of land in Lebanon County, especially those that have never participated in the past, should contact Charlene Ziegler at Lebanon County FSA (717) 273-9321 or Tim Emenheiser at NRCS (717) 272-4618 for additional information.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) prohibits discrimination in its programs on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, and marital or familial status. (Not all prohibited bases apply to all programs.

Persons with disabilities who require alternative means for communication of program information (braille, large print, audiotape, etc,) should contact the USDA, Office of Communications at 202-720-5881 (voice) or 202-720-7808 (TDD).

To file a complaint, write the Secretary of Agriculture, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC, 20250, or call 202-720-7327 (voice) or 202-720-1127 (TDD). USDA is an equal employment opportunity employer.

Pennsylvania 4-H Extension Agents Honor Their Best

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Michael Martin, county extension director and 4-H agent in Luzerne County, and Pamela Paletta, 4-H agent in Washington County, were honored recently with the Distinguished Service Award by the Pennsylvania Association of Extension 4-H Agents (PAE4-HA). The award is given annually to one or two 4-H agents in Pennsylvania whose educational programs reflect dedication to youth development.

Lydia Kepler, 4-H extension agent in Mercer County, was presented with the New Worker Award. The award recognizes accomplishments fo agents on the job for less than two years.

Phyllis Wright, 4-H and family living agent in Warren County, was honored for 25 years of service to 4-H and youth development.

Bill Campbell of Hoss's Steak & Seafood House was named the Clover Award for his on-going support of the 4-H livestock programs. The award is given to someone not a member of the association who demonstrates continued support for 4-H in Pennsylvania. Plans are being made to present the award to Campbell during the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The awards were made during the annual PAE4-HA meeting held in Harrisburg, where the group also visited the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes addressed the group before they toured the new diagnostic laboratory facility nearby.

4-H agents were also given certificates to recognize outstanding communication skills. They included the following: Newsletter: 1. Amy Benson, Potter County; 2. Lydia Kepler, Mercer County; 3. Ida's Notebook

by Ida Risser

It is difficult to realize that November is almost here. The leaves are almost all off of the trees and now I can see some neighbor's houses again.

The other week I put some flowers in pots. My favorite are the small impatiens as they will bloom all winter if I remember to water them regularly. I must be slipping as there are only 90 on my windowsills instead of 100 like last year.

Recently my sisters and I got together at Muddy Run in southern Lancaster County. We took a short walk, down a very steep hill, and a shared a big evening meal. One sister from Michigan thoughtfully returned our wedding pictures so that we can share them with our children. We five all brought photos to help us catch up with each others' lives.

I took a big box of neck pumpkins to share and another sister brought a basket of apples that they grew. This year my decorative gourds and tiny, tiny pumpkins did very well in the garden and I've had enough to share. My pole limas have given a bumper crop this year and we'll have plenty this winter.

Recently, we got an opportunity to see other peoples' vegetables at the Leola Produce Market. There were mules pulling wagon loads of very large pumpkins and also wagons full of cauliflower. For the first time I saw purple peppers mixed in with red and yellow ones. Perfect tomatoes were displayed in boxes. Not only were vegetables for sale, but also decorated gourds, very tiny straw bales, scarecrows, and lots of flowers both potted and dried arrangements.

I know that behind this display of a bountiful harvest lay weeks and weeks of hard labor.

You Ask, You Answer

ANSWER — Thanks to Fran Pierman, Stockton, N.J., for sending directions, which had been requested from a Honesdale reader, to make a basket from paper grocery bags.

Paper Bag Basket

16 yards (3 packages) raffia ribbon
5/8 yards material
5/8 yards quilt battin (½ -inch thick)
1¼ yards lace
3 grocery bags

You'll need a stapler and a hot glue gun. Measure, cut and unwrap raffia as follows:

6 pieces 25-inches long
4 pieces 29-inches long
4 pieces 40-inches long
Handle: 3 pieces 24-inches long
Bow:
2 pieces 36-inches long
2 pieces 13-inches long

To cut bags, leave folded and cut where bottom folds against side of bag. Cut tops off bags. Set one bag inside of the other and staple edge of top. (To make more sturdy, glue cardboard to paper bags).

To unwrap raffia, wet to slightly dampen strands. Do not wet heavily or the strands will take too long to dry. Just wet hand and squeeze strands in groups then unwind raffia. (Strands split easy—be careful).

Take 25-inches raffia, which has been unwrapped and is dry, and fold over side of bags at one end (corner) about 1½ -inch and staple. Continue all six pieces in same manner. Take 29-inch pieces, weave across bottom—draw up ends, bend over edge and staple.

Now take 40-inch strands and weave around sides of bag. Starting and ending on the underside of a strand and staple. Where stapler doesn't reach use hot glue.

Next hot glue batting by spot touching glue about 1-inch from top on outside of basket. Just let hang loose on inside.

Take material and fold in half lengthwise and cut on fold. Spot glue at close spots around edge of batting and attach material then turn over basket to hang on inside as did with batting.

Pillow for the bottom: Take the three cut-off bag tops and fold in half and staple to hold. Wrap around with batting—staple and then wrap around with material. Cut off excess piece. Glue across pillow. Fold ends as you would a package and glue. Put in basket.

Edge outside of basket covering glued part of material with the lace.

Use the three 24-inch pieces of raffia and braid for the handle. Glue handle tightly to each side.

Lastly, take one 36-inch piece and fold ends to cross in middle to look like a bow. Pull ends to give bow shape. Just pinch together. Now take 13-inch piece and bring ends together in middle just crossing about an inch and squeeze the middle. With material, cut strip about 2-inches wide and 6-inches long. Fold material about 1-inch and holding both pieces of raffia together like a bow, wrap and glue material to hold firm and glue on end of handle. Do the same with the other side.

Bees Help Maintain Plant Collection

GREENBELT, Md. — Maintaining collections of seeds and plants for many generations without altering their genetic variability is not a simple matter of occasionally producing fresh seed supplies. It's a laborious job - for man and bees.

At the North Central Regional Plant Introduction Station in Ames, Iowa, a new addition to this vital workforce is the Osmia or mason bee.

When the Iowa station was founded in 1948, hand pollination was the norm. Honey bees were put to work in the 1970's, and they remain the station's principal pollinating workhorses.

But, over the winter, hives normally don't have enough time to build up their numbers for pollinations that must be done in the spring. Purchasing additional bees from suppliers in the southern United States is costly and runs the risk of conveying diseases and mites.

That's when cool-season workers like Osmia come in handy.

Introduced from Japan in 1977, solitary, hard-working Osmia bees have for the past two years proved their worth in pollinating canola and other members of the mustard or Brassicaceae family. The bees emerge from artificial nests to pollinate at precisely the time Brassica plants flower.

The station also uses bumblebees. Their long tongues and large size allow them to pollinate flowers like snapdragons.

Other plants the station maintains include pumpkins, corn, sunflowers, melons, cucumbers, carrots, chicory, herbaceous ornamentals and shrubs.

An article on controlled pollination appears in the October Agricultural Research magazine. The article also is on the World Wide Web at:
http://www.ars.usda.gov/is/AR/archive/oct97/pollen 1097.htm

The North Central Regional Plant Introduction Station's home page is:
http://www.ars-grin.gov/ars/Midwest/Ames/

The Ames station holds more than 40,000 genetically separate types of plants from around the world. The facility is part of a national system for maintaining the genetic diversity of crop plants and their relatives as potential sources of disease and pest resistance or as future crops.

Calcium Requirements

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Leading health experts agree that the best way to meet daily nutrient requirements is through food. In order to help people enjoy getting the calcium and other important nutrients they need, the National Dairy Council recently released the brochure, Thinking About Calcium? Find it in Food First. The brochure, reviewed for technical accuracy by The American Dietetic Association, showcases different combinations of foods

For people on the run, fast meals might not contain the key nutrients, like calcium, needed in the daily diet. In fact, 70 percent of Americans may not be getting the calcium they need. Skimping on calcium can increase the risk of the bone-thinning disease osteoporosis and of hypertension, a major risk factor for heart disease and stroke. The Food First brochure outines simple solutions for meeting calcium requirements and ways to make even fast meals rich in calcium.

Also, many people who believe they are lacose intolerant could be unnecessarily missing out on Milk Gorup foods. The Lowdown on Lactose Intolerance, a new brochure from the NDC and favorably reviewed by the American Gastroenterological Association, features recent research showing that people with lactose intolerance can still drink up to two glasses of milk each day with meals.

The brochure offers other "tips for tolerance" and encourages people who think they may be lactose intolerant to see their doctor since other health problems may have similar symptoms.

The two brochures are available free of charge by sending a self-addressed, stamped letter-size envelope to: Dairy Council, Inc., Health & Nutrition Focus, The Lowdown on Lactose Intolerance" and "Thinking About Calcium?," 1225 Industrial Blvd., Southampton. PA 18966-4044.

Pa. Maple Producers Gather In Somerset

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SALISBURY (Somerset Co.) — The Pennsylvania 1997 Maple Tour held some of its business in neighboring Grantsville, Md., where its headquarters was located, but except for one camp in Garrett County, remaining tour stops took them north of the Mason-Dixon line in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

Hosted by the Somerset County Maple Producers Association -- Gary Blocher is the president -- and Anni Davenport from Penn State, by bus the group observed area maple camps that vary as much in operating as they do in age and size.

Glenn Yoder's camp near Grantsville was built around 1950. He opts for a wood heated evaporator. Sap is collected in some 700 buckets and from 250 taps on a vacuumed tubing system.

Bill Mast's Piney Run camp near Salisbury was built in 1992. Again, a vacuumed tubing system accomodates 2,000 taps. Mast also hangs about 1,000 buckets. The use of a unique steam box prior to the actual evaporation process, preheats the gathered 'weet water.

At Wagner's Sugar Camp in West Salisbury the tourists experienced a convergence of modernity with the historical in the fourth generation, Wagner family maple business.

A number of the venerable maple producing trees gracing this restfully located operation on the banks of pretty Tub Mill Run, after 150 years continue their work.

With a well-preserved rusticity, the camp offers easy parking for buses and other vhicles.

Methods for sanitizing maple tubing and modified water pumps for gathering sap in remote locations was demonstrated at Milroy Farms, by Blocher and other local producrers.

Although it is less elastic thanb "soft" tubing, the stiff tubing that is being more extensively used may offer the advantage of greater ease in oeprations with year around tubing installation in the sugarbush, according to Frank Schambach of Schambach Maple Inc. from Sardinia, N.Y.

With one of his local dealers Schambach demonstrated its installation and use to the group.

They also digested Dick Plotts advice about entering maple competitions. Plotts is a retired Clinton County extension agent.

The session with Lew Staats from Lake Placid, N.Y., however, addressed the latest information coming out of research at the Uihlein Sugar Maple Research and Extension Field Station in Lake Placid.

Local producers are jubilant that Jeremy Walters from Berlin has joined their ranks as an FFA maple producer and has opened ar rare, new camp which was toured the second day.

Walters, with guidance from his dad and help from FFA comrades has 1,200 taps on rented trees, uses 1,100 buckets and has another 100 taps connected to tubing.

ErRer Hill Farms, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Riggs, with typical hospitality at their large and diverse farm near Friedens, hosted the tour for Saturday lunch.

Their registered Angus animals exceed 500 head. They have 100 head of ostriches and an average of 20 llamas.

Corn, soybeans, oats, hay and pasture forages for the most part, are produced for animal feed on the spread associated with environmentally sound practices. Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association last year, bestowed its Environmental Stewardship Award on ErRer Hill Farms.

Highlighting the two-day event was the crowning of a new state maple sweetheart in 18-year old Stacey Hamilton from Ulysses, Potter County.

"A knowledge of maple is very important," she remarked earlier in the day, prior to delivering her speech at the banquet held later that evening.

Her rank as a sixth generation maple producer, therefore, has equipped the Northern Potter High school senior to promote the state's maple industry wherever the young woman goes.

Tricia Tobin, representing the Northwest Association and Sara Lynn Jennings, representative of the Endless Mountains Association were the other contestants.

The Northwest Association's Melissa Dengler was the outgoing state maple sweetheart.

Wilbur Snyder, who was described as "a real advocate of maple," had the honor of this year's booklet being dedicated to him by the Somerset County Maple Producers Association.

For 20 years he was a member of the local organization and spent time as its president. He strove, actively, to hold educational meetings whereby his fellow producers heard updated maple information and learned current techniques.

The tourists also attended "The Whiskey Rebellion" celebration commemorating an historical 1794 event. It was held in Berlin.

From left, Stacey Hamilton, the new PA Maple Sweetheart is joined by other contestants Tricia Tobin and Sara Jennings at a maple sugar camp in Somerset County.

4-Her's Hold Round-Up Picnic

The North Mountain 4-H club held its yearly round up picnic on Aug. 23 at Fran Bushong's farm.

Kevin Smith, president, Christopher Blauch, Natalie Funck, and Laura Blauch each presented a check of $1,000 to four different charities. The club had spent a year earning money for the charities.

New projects for the fall included quilting, electricity, air rifles, entomology, crosstitch, and sewing.

On Sept. 14 the club held a petting zoo at the Kindred Place Nursing Home in Annville. The club brought animals including sheep, goats, pigs, a calf, a ferret, ducks, a turkey, and several others.

At the September meeting, Liz Ebersole staged environmental games. New business included another upcoming petting zoo, fall projects, and a vote on a decision between a club trip to Candylane, a fun night at a nursing home, or both. The almost unanimous vote favored both ideas.

Project demonstrations were entomology, quilting, and photography. New officers have been elected.

Children Urged To Eat Breakfast

TOWSON, Md. - What do a 1500-pound dairy cow and "That Milk Thing" have in common? Along with wanting kids to drink more milk, they both attended the school breakfast celebration at Burrowes Elementary School in the School District of Lancaster recently. The celebration was sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) to alert children, parents, and the community to the importance of a healthy breakfast with milk.

Deputy Secretary Christian Herr and County Commissioner Ron Ford greeted guests attending the special breakfast celebration. Local community leaders were invited to eat school breakfast with the children and enjoy a special presentation of MAMMA's in-school assembly called "Eat Smart To Be Smart," which features "That Milk Thing."

Burrowes is one of 13 elementary schools in Lancaster visited by "That Milk Thing" in September. Of the more than 11,000 students in Lancaster, 15 percent participate regularly in the school breakfast program. Students who eat breakfast at school are assured a healthy start every morning. Studies show that these students have higher test scores, higher concentration levels, and longer attention spans.

Sponsored in part by a matching grant provided by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the "Eat Smart To Be Smart" assembly and "I Love Milk at Breakfast" is presented by MAMMA to Lancaster schools to increase breakfast participation and school milk sales.

MAMMA is a non-profit milk promotion and advertising association funded by Mid-Atlantic dairy farm families. "That Milk Thing" and MAMMA's in-school programs are designed to encourage children ages 6 - 11 to drink more milk.

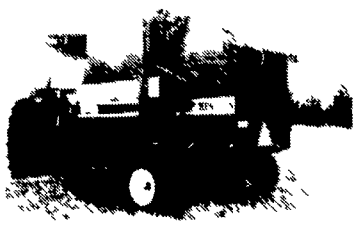
Round Silage Baler Adds Flexibility

ATLANTA, Ga. — Agco Hesston has introduced the 545, a new variable chamber round silage baler that gives today's hay producers more flexibility when making hay.

The Hesston 545 silage baler uses a 77.6 inch wide, low profile pickup to lift crop to the baler. To get more of the short, fine material, the pickup has four tine bars with a total of 96 curved tines. Two gauge wheels guide the pickup over uneven ground and prevent the tines from hitting the ground. As crop enters the pickup, centering augers move the crop to the throat opening to feed the bale chamber. Pickup height can be manually adjusted.

Once the hay enters the bale chamber, six 6.97 inch wide 3-ply endless belts start to form the crop into a bale. Bale size, capacity and density vary with moisture content. The 545 can producet bales 46.5 inches wide by 30 inches to 60 inches in diameter. For dry hay, the baling capacity of the 545 is 20 ton per hour and the bale density is 16 pounds per cubic foot. The 545 can bale 23 tons per hour with a bale density of 33 pounds per cubic foot when baling silage hay.

Bale density during bale formation is maintained by a dual hydraulic density system. The hydraulic system applies pressure to the forming belts and to the bale as crop continues to enter the baler.



Producing bales up to 60 inches in diameter, the new Hesston 545 Round Silage Baler offers you a way to improve hay quality while reducing weather dependence when making hay.

A bale full indicator signals that the bale has reached a preset size and needs to be wrapped. The 545 uses a single-arm, dual-twine tube system to wrap the bale. Twine is fed from the twine box through two twine tubes to the twine arm. A hydraulic cylinder powers the twine arm, and a twine arm indicator lets the operator monitor twine placement. When wrapping is complete, the spring loaded twine cutoff mechanism, operating like scissors, cuts the twine. An automatic bale ejector system is standard on the 545 round silage baler.

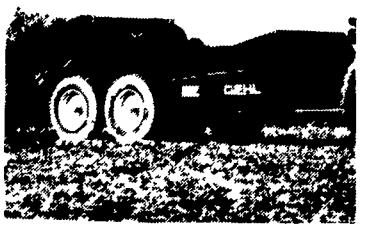
Box Spreaders Range from 177 — 410 Bushels

WEST BEND, Wis. — Gehl Company announces the availability of four new box spreader models with capacities ranging from 177 to 410 bushels.

"These new box spreaders incorporate the performance and design features to make them top performers," said Jim Phillips, Gehl product development manager. "The four models can be customized to match almost any box spreader requirement."

Durability and strength are the hallmarks of the Gehl box spreader. Extra-heavy-duty axles feature high-strength steel plates and spindles to reduce frame stress. Tough corrosion-resistant steel is used in the sides and endgate.

The floor is constructed from high-density polyethylene tongue-and-groove planks for a tight, leak-proof fit. The floor material resists acid, won't warp or rot, and provides a slippery surface so manure slides out with less resistance.



Gehl Company announces the availability of four new box spreader models with capacities ranging from 177 to 410 bushels.

Sides and floors are backed by a 12-year guarantee. According to Phillips, "If the sides or floor fail while the rest of the spreader is still operational, Gehl will replace the parts free of charge. This guarantee applies to the original owner and subsequent owners, which means extra value at resale time."

Conference Highlights Benefits Of Product To Help Manage Manure Problems

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Producers dealing with problems of odor control and issues of managing nutrients from manure have a new weapon — and it is completely natural.

This week, producers and agri-industry representatives gathered at the Pennsylvania Chamber of Business and Industry in Harrisburg during a conference, sponsored by the Pennsylvania International Trade Corporation, to introduce a product to help control manure odor, reduce fly population, and help utilize nitrogen in manure for field applications.

The name of the product line is Geolife, and includes products formulated for specific agricultural and animal farming applications. The manufacturer is Bioma-Co Agro Ecology of Switzerland.

The product is a complex "bioenzyme" that helps break down the molecules that comprise manure into simpler, natural substances, according to Ivano E. Ponti, president of Geolife USA Biotechnology, the line of products managed by Bioma-Co Agro Ecology. By doing so, ammonia (odor in manure) is neutralized, Ponti explained during the three-day conference held this week.

According to Ponti, as manure breaks down, the food energy for fly populations is reduced, thus reducing fly outbreaks in compost piles.

Ponti noted that the Geolife products provide a "biological solution" to the pollution problem, "a more ecologically friendly solution." Geolife, marketed successfully in 22 countries, is a combination of enzymes and coenzymes, natural soil 1 + 2 + 3s, and a booster solution that modifies the toxic substances in liquid and solid manure. Those modifications, according to a company brochure, neutralize the bothersome and harmful ammonia and other gases contained in manure emissions.

The product, available as a manure storage additive according to Bill Andring, general council for the U.S. distributor, Pennsylvania International Trade Corporation, oxidizes organic substances, helping the natural bacteria do their job in breaking down manure makeup. With Geolife, the manufacturers claim it is possible to control coliform bacteria and other pathogenic microorganisms in ag environments.

Those who spoke at the conference to promote a bioenzyme product to help in odor control and other manure management problems included, from left, Bill Andring, Esq., general counsel to the Pennsylvania International Trade Corporation; Eng. German Rodriguez of Megafarma SA de VC, Mexico; Roberto Morosoli, president of Megafarma; Rae Andring, president of the Pennsylvania International Trade Corporation; Dr. Elio Bortoli, president of Bioma Co. in Switzerland; and Ivano Ponti, president of Geolife USA Biotechnology Inc.

Application of the product can allow producers to apply fresh, liquid manure to fields without odor.

According to Andring, Geolife is available for house treatment in Pennsylvania for manure piles. The product, however, is already registered in 25 states for general ag usage. The company is waiting for Pa. Dept. of Agriculture approval for field applications in the near future, he indicated.

But for confinement house operations, the product provides another weapon to control odors and reduce fly populations.

As proof, Eng. German Rodriguez of Megafarma SA de CV, Mexico, spoke about the use of Geolife on the farm operations. At one large swine facility, the La Loma Farm in La Piedad, Michoacan, Mexico, a big benefit was a reduction in pig mortality within a year of testing. Because of the reduction in ammonia, the pigs were granted a healthier environment — reducing pig mortality from 40 animals down to five. The farm was finishing about 2,400 hogs per month — mortality dropped from 2 percent down to ⅛ of 1 percent.

The hogs are housed primarily on concrete floors. The material is sprayed on once a week. On some slatted floors, spray applications are once a month.

Cost will depend on the age of the pig and the size of the facility.

The environment is also healthier for the workers, who can spend more time on pig care and facilities management, Rodriguez noted during a question and answer session Tuesday. The product could prove useful on other confinement operations, including poultry, for controlling flies and reducing odor.

According to Andring, work on hog farm solid and liquid waste treatment is under way at RPM Farms in Beavertown. Other experiments are being done with waste water treatment in Washington Township.

During the presentation Tuesday, Dr. Elio Bortoli, president of Bioma Co. Agro Ecology of Switzerland Ag, indicated that it is unlawful to spread fresh manure on fields in Europe. That's why products such as Geolife provide an "alternative way" to deal with some of the issues now.

The conference continued with a tour of RPM Farms in Beavertown Wednesday and the waste water treatment facility in Washington Township Thursday.

Farm Credit To Open New Office

YORK (York Co.) — York Farm Credit has begun construction on a 7,000-square-foot facility located on Rt. 11 between Chambersburg and Shippensburg.

This facility, the first building to be erected in the Farm Credit Business Center, should be completed in six to eight months.

The Cumberland Valley office, as it will be known, will provide lending and financial services to agricultural and rural residents of Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, and Perry counties.

This new facility is the result of the association's desire to operate more efficiently and still provide for the needs of Cumberland Valley members. The staff who work out of the Carlisle and Chambersburg branches will make the Cumberland Valley branch their base of operations.

Staff at the Carlisle branch, which has been sold, have relocated to the New Bloomfield and Chambersburg offices until the new building is complete.

Jay Rush, president, reported, "Loan officers will continue to meet with farm customers at their businesses, making it easy to conduct business with York Farm Credit."

N.Y. Farm Bureau Names Communications Director

ALBANY, N.Y. — New York Farm Bureau Administrator Tim Buskey recently announced that Randall Sawyer has been named the organization's director of communications.

Buskey said, "It gives me great pleasure to welcome Randall back to New York Farm Bureau as director of communications. He is an outstanding communicator who has earned the respect of his colleagues throughout New York State. Randall is very creative and possesses the skills that will assist New York Farm Bureau in getting the agricultural message across to the general public through the media and our own member-driven publications. We are glad to have him back."

Sawyer said, "I am very excited about the opportunity to lead the Communication's Department of New York Farm Bureau and to play a major role in the organization's future. As director of communications, I intend to implement several changes within the department that will pay dividends in the future as we tell agriculture's story to all New Yorkers. I am looking forward to many new challenges and successes."

Prior to being named director of communcations, Sawyer was the public information officer at the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. In addition, Sawyer has worked in the communications department at New York Farm Bureau and served as press secretary to two state senators.

Sawyer is a 1988 graduate of the State University of New York at Geneseo. He is a candidate for his master of arts degree in political communications at the State University of New York at Albany. He is a 1997 winner of the nationally recognized Telly Award for a public service commercial he produced entitled "Empty Plates."

Berks 4-H Beef Club Holds Roundup

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — On Oct. 8, the Berks County 4-H Beef Club held its roundup at the Leesport Farmers Market. Cheryl Fairbain of Honey Brook was the judge for the day.

Ben Weist of Leesport won grand champion with his 1280-pound Charolais/Simmental steer named "Mark." Ben was proud to say that his steer is a home-bred animal out of one of his project heifers.

Ben's cousin Kelly Dietrich of Hamburg received reserve champion with her 1,255-pound Limousin crossbred steer named "Lane."

Carlos R. Leffler, Inc. purchased the grand champion steer for $1,200. The reserve champion steer was purchased by CoreStates Bank for $1,175. The 26 4-H steers sold averaged $185 over their market value.

The Berks County 4-H Beef Club has had a very rewarding and challenging year. In January, 15 new members joined the beef club. The club's teen leaders were given the responsibility of helping these new members at meetings, with their project books, coach them on showmanship and fitting, and sometimes just being their friend. The new and experienced members learned to work and play together. The 35 Beef Club members have become good friends, who enjoy being in 4-H for what they can learn, the friends they make and the friendly competition which they experience.

"Beef 2000" Nov. 10-12 At Penn State

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Cattlemen from all segments of the commonwealth's beef industry will have the opportunity to participate in a three-day course Nov. 10-12 at Penn State University.

Beef 2000 is coordinated by the Pennsylvania Beef Council in cooperation with Penn State Department of Animal Science and Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

The program will provide producers with the opportunity to follow several head of finished beef cattle from the point of departure from the farm to the packing plant and finally to the consumer. Cattlemen will evaluate these cattle live, including ultrasound work and then observe the slaughter process in the packer's shoes, as well as grade and inspect the carcasses with a USDA inspector and grader. Producers will then fabricate the carcasses into wholesale and retail cuts, assessing a value to the product through each step.

This hands-on "ranch-to-rail" program is an opportunity to help cattlemen become more efficient in their business practices, while mingling with other cattlemen. The registration cost is $30 per person plus overnight accommodations.

The Beef Council has tried diligently to keep the costs of this program down with the help of Pennsylvnaia Cattlemen's Association and several animal health companies.

Applications are available by contacting Tammy Weaver, Director of Industry Relations at the Pennsylvania Beef Council, 800-572-2020. Space is limited to the first 30 participants, which will be determined on a first-come, first-served basis.

Cattle, Consumers Meet Face-To-Face at Beef Expo

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — People and livestock are a fairly common sight at Wisconsin State Fair Park, Milwaukee, Wis., but cattle breeds like Pinzgauer, Piedmontese, and Murray Grey were new to consumers who visited the World Beef Expo held for the first time in conjunction with State Fair Park's annual Harvest Fair.

Now in its fifth year, the World Beef Expo featured world-class cattle judging, breed sales and prospect shows, as well as new consumer-oriented events that drew visitors to the Expo.

New to the World Beef Expo, the Taste of Beef, presented by Wisconsin CattleWomen and Miller Brewing Company, offered samples of delicious beef entrees from six restaurants: African Harvest, Fountain Blue, Saz's, Machine Shed, Karl's Country Market, and Bangkok Orchid. The Machine Shed reported serving 1,400 samples.

Cooking demonstrations and contests, presented by the Wisconsin Beef Council, and the Wonago Rodeo Bull-Riding Challenge, sponsored by Miller Brewing Company, were also popular with general consumers at both events. The "Celebrity Beat the Clock" cook-off pitted Lips LaBelle of WKTI, Wisconsin's Fairest of the Fairs Stephanie Brunner, and State Fair Park Director Rick Bjorklund against each other and against the clock.

Living up to its name, the World Beef Expo drew visitors from around the globe. The International Business and Media Center, sponsored by Wisconsin's Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, greeted guests from the Ukraine, Egypt, Sweden, Norway, Poland, Germany, Japan, Russia, and Tanzania.

More than 200 beef producers exhibited close to 900 head of 13 breeds of cattle. The largest number of entries was in the open Polled Hereford show with 145 head. Angus and Simmental came in a close second, with more than 100 entries each.

The top overall herdsperson, chosen from the 12 winners of the IN-DE Custom Embroidery Herdsmanship Awards, was actually a joint award to Sally Stryffler, a Piedmontese exhibitor from Wooster, Ohio, and to Jerry Jurkowski, a Belted Galloway exhibitor from Rockton, Ill. The Herdsmanship Award is presented to those demonstrating exemplary exhibit organization, cleanliness, and cooperation with show management.

The Youth Sweepstakes, sponsored by Leigh Bert Farms, recognizes young people between the ages of nine and 19 in such competitions as herdsmanship, public speaking, judging, showmanship, and an individual "quiz bowl." The winners, both from Columbia County, Wis., were Cara James in the senior division, and Jessica Arp in the junior division. More than 220 head were shown in the junior cattle shows.

Overall, World Beef Expo paid out more than $17,000 in cash premiums in the open and junior classes. In addition, almost 1,800 ribbons, medallions, pins, plates and other awards were presented to exhibitors and contest winners.

Commercial exhibitors were generally pleased with the exposure received in State Fair Park's 31,000 square-foot Trade Mart and at several outside exhibit areas.

For more information on World Beef Expo, contact Doug Nelson, State Fair Park agriculture director, at 414-266-7050 or by e-mail at dnelson5@mail.state.wi.us.

CASE

The CASE IH Axial Flow Combine Might Not Be Perfect, But It Gets Closer Every Year.

Since 1977 CASE IH combine engineers have worked to perfect the design of their AXIAL FLOW machines... They are unmatched for their combination of POWER, PERFORMANCE, RELIABILITY, DEPENDABILITY, and PRODUCTION capabilities.

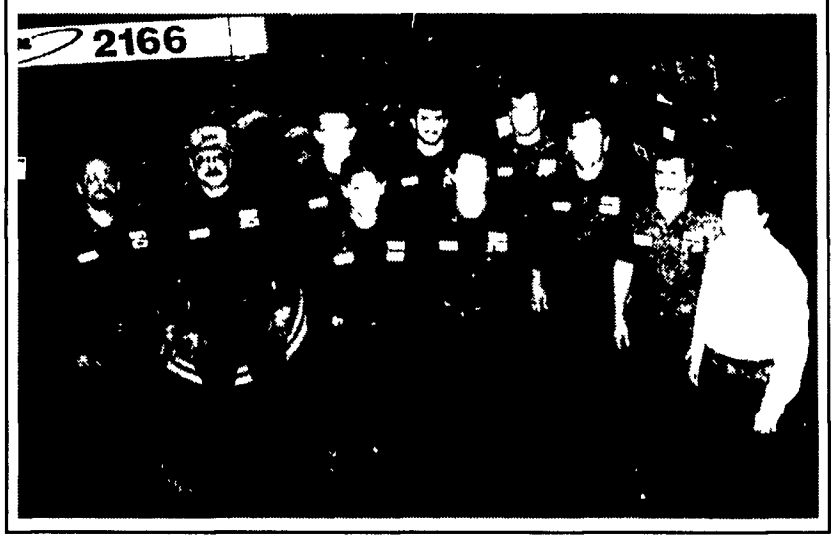
Twenty years experience with Axial Flow combines running on Eastern Farms taught us:

1) You spend less time in the combine per acre, because you can start earlier in the day and work later...

2) The grain sample is cleaner with less cracked grain, because the Axial Flow system is gentler on your crops.

3) You have little or no downtime because Hoobers stock parts and have experienced Combine service technicians to keep you running.

4) Hoober people know the differing crop conditions encountered in PA, MD, NJ and DE, because they have worked with them from the beginning.



CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO OWN A HOOBER AXIAL FLOW COMBINE?

DAIRYMEN SAY YES AS TESTING PERIOD NEARS END

As I am writing this, there are hundred and hundreds more Dairymen testing Formula M. The results are trickling in. By the time you read this, we may have the final results. I have been testing Formula M for years and all the results have exceeded my expectations in appetite improvement; higher energy level; giving more milk; cows (even the extremely difficult or next to impossible ones) getting pregnant on the first breeding.

AND NOW!!! Dairymen everywhere are telling me that the Somatic Cell Count goes down when they feed Formula M. Over and over, I am hearing that the Somatic Cell Count goes way down. Dairymen tell me that they have tried other products and that they thought they saw some benefits, but the same Dairymen tell me that they see very dramatic differences almost immediately when using Formula M. Dairymen say they see a vast improvement in energy level and appetite. They say that they can see a significant increase in milk in a week to ten days after starting on Formula M. Some Dairymen say their cows average 5 pounds more milk per cow, per day. The last reports I am waiting for are on Somatic Cell Count. They keep coming in and they keep verifying what we have been told many times before, that the Somatic Cell Count goes way down when feeding Formula M.

If I had known all this before I set the price, (8¢ per cow, per day) I might have charged more. After all, it looks like most Dairymen will make an extra $1.00 per cow, per day.

Formula M is a powder and it comes in a 5 gallon plastic bucket. Feed Formula M according to the directions on the label, only ½ ounce per cow per day. (Formula M is very concentrated. ½ ounce per day is all they need). You can put Formula M in the TMR, you can put it in your grain mix or if you prefer, you can top dress Formula M. All you need to do to get Formula M is call one of the numbers below. We ship the same day by UPS. Make the check payable to FRANK LAMPLEY and give it to the driver when he delivers.

A 5 gallon bucket is enough for about 40 cows for one month and costs only $92.00 (I pay freight). Formula M is completely free of drugs and made by the same people who make Vitamix.

There is one question that keeps coming up over and over, "How long do I have to keep feeding the Formula M?" "Forever?" The answer is, "Only as long as you want to keep making the extra dollar per day, per cow."

FORMULA M... IT'S WHAT CAUSES BABIES

FEED CONTROL...
The chain feeding system does not dictate a feeding program. You are In control feeding exactly what is needed, as little or as much as you want when you want.

158"

- Thick manure belts carry waste to the end of the building. Without manure storage in the building, air quality is improved.
- Environmental concerns of today and the future are reduced with this system. Be among the first to be a good neighbor.
- Walkways tie into sides of existing or new building to provide strength.
- Our feed trough fits snugly on the cage. This provides strength, and protects eggs as they move to the egg belt. The straight inner side of the trough also acts as a manure shield.
- Our cage is designed and constructed to control egg roll, significantly reducing crax and chex and providing cleaner eggs.

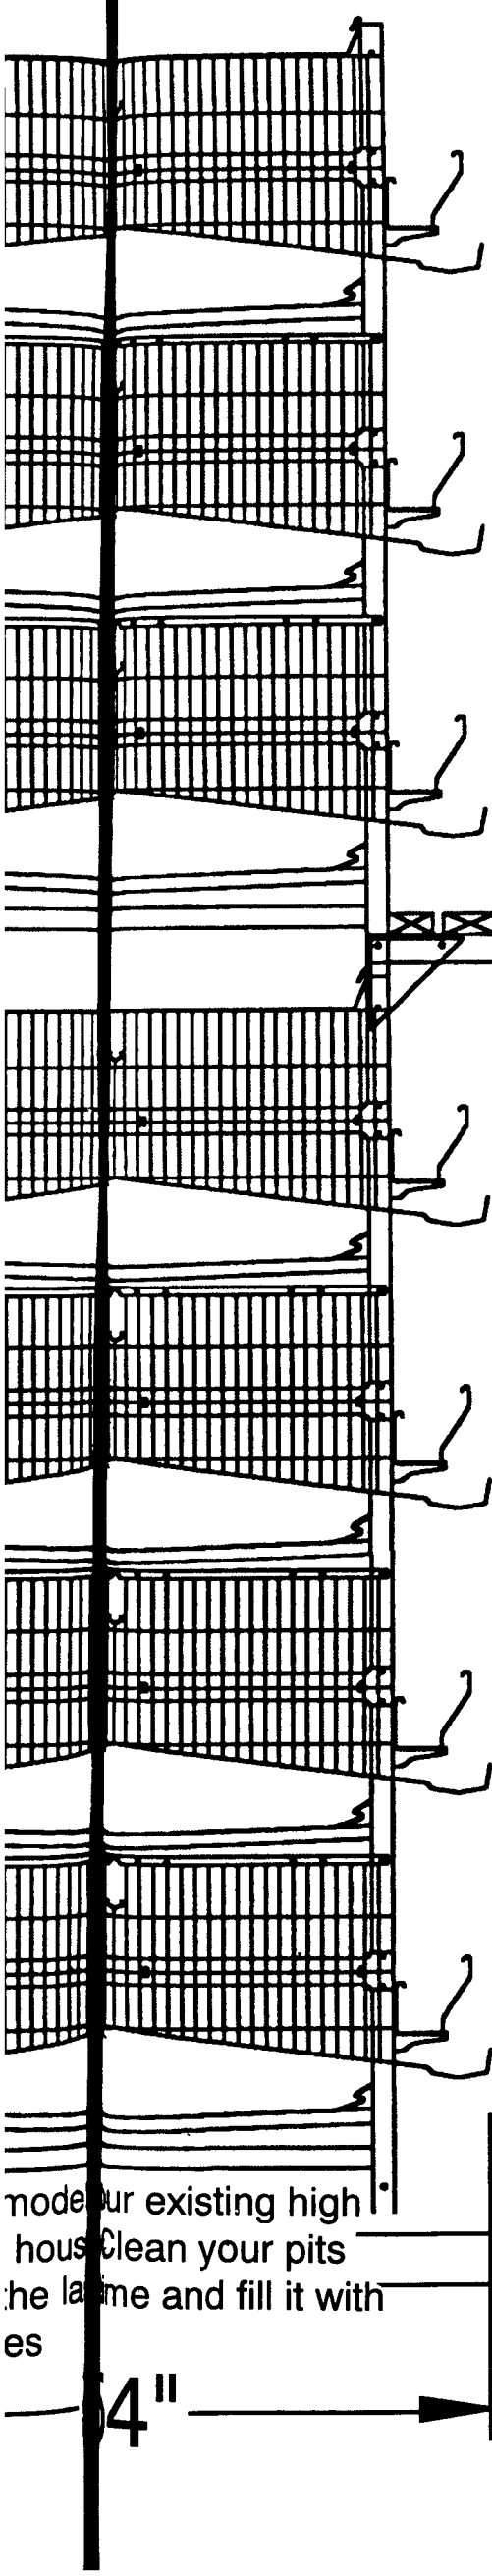
RATION IS HERE NOW!

IM STAK CAGES



- STAK cages are designed for 3 tiers up to 8 tiers high.
- Sliding horizontal wire rod doors open the full width of the cage.
- STAK cages are available with specially designed air ducts in each cage to provide fresh air to each bird.
- Walkway structure allows access to all cage tiers.
- Reduces building costs and increases bird capacity.
- Our feeder delivers feed to the birds uniformly, amply, and with great reliability. The design of the system helps to keep eggs cleaner, and the superior suspension method makes the entire cage row stronger.
- System available with combination step-rail and cart guide.

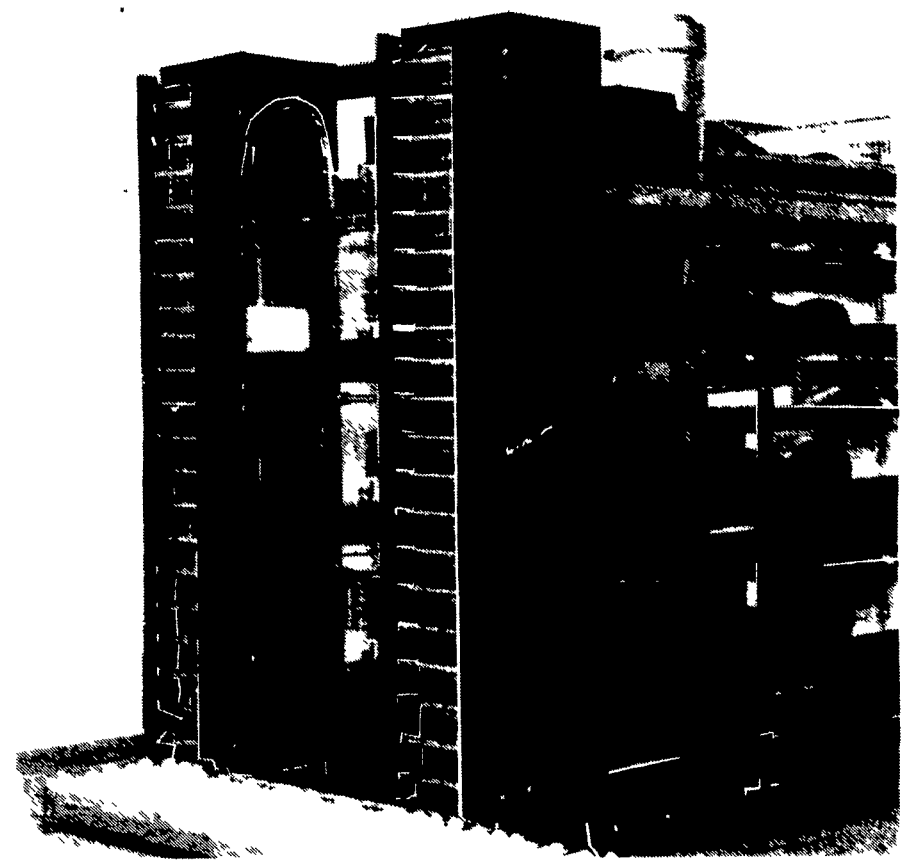
Big Dutchman's policy is one of continuous improvement

"PAMPER" EGG COLLECTION ... The Big Dutchman vertical egg collection unit is unsurpassed in pampering eggs.

QUALITY EGG BELT... We offer our standard 3¾ inch woven fabric belts. A shallow "V" shape in the wire egg tray keeps eggs In the center.



DISCHARGE OPTIONS... Eggs can be discharged from the collector below the floor, at floor level, or at a varying height discharge which best suits your house.

PROVEN ROD CONVEYOR... The rod conveyor moves eggs from the collector to the packer with no rolling or colliding. It can move up and down inclines, and is ideal for moving eggs between several houses and the packing room in multi-building farms.

CASH ADVANCE PROGRAM

Production Flexibility Contracts

If waiting for your Production Flexibility Contract payments is limiting your growth or holding you back on your plans, there is now a solution. The CASH NOW PURCHASE PROGRAM allows you to sell your future contract payments for cash dollars today. The flexible nature of the program allows you to

- Sell all or part of your contract payments depending on the amount of cash you need now. Since this is not a loan, no payments are due directly from you and the cash you receive now does not show up on your books as a loan
- Repurchase any remaining future payments due if your needs change later
- Raise cash, typically within 30-40 days
- Sell payments on both owned and leased land operations

Limit your primary responsibility to remaining in compliance with the Production Flexibility Contract Program

- Participate in a program that is deliberately designed to allow you full control of your operation. This includes provisions for selling your land, dropping out of the program, buying more qualifying land, and more

To obtain more information and a written price offer, you need to proceed as follows

- Contact us. We will send a one page pricing request form. Provide us payment information about your production flexibility contract on the PFC pricing request form. Since we can buy all or part of your contract payments, you need to specify the amount of capital you need now. We will prepare our offer based on your figures
- Upon acceptance of our offer, we will prepare contract documents for your signature
- Upon receipt of the signed contract documents from you, we will request any additional information needed and submit the necessary document to The Farm Service Agency for their acknowledgement
- Once The Farm Service Agency acknowledgement has been received and other conditions of closing have been met, the agreed upon funds are wired to your account

It's that simple... To inquire further, call Dick Croyle: toll free 1-888-687-8491 office 717-284-3151 - mobile 717-575-5337.

MIRACLE GIRL SAYS!!!

If your cow or calf is ill, you need one of two things. You need a miracle or you need some Vitamix. Miracles do happen; and one might happen for you; but I am going to order some Vitamix! I will get the Vitamix for sure!!! The next time you need a miracle, call Frank Lampley. Frank is my friend. He will send your Vitamix the same day you order. Just tell him Angie sent you. If you order Vitamix now; you can have it tomorrow.

You can use Vitamix for colds, flu and viruses; and your cows and calves will very soon get much better. Antibiotics make them worse if they have a cold, flu or virus. Use Vitamix for scours. Your calves will make a speedy recovery. If you use antibiotics, they will get a lot worse. Antibiotics do permanent damage to the bone marrow. The bone marrow is what makes the white cells. When antibiotics damage the bone marrow, it makes fewer white cells (immune deficiency). White cells are the only real defense against contagious diseases and infections.

Vitamix is all natural!!!
Vitamix is for cows after calving.
Vitamix is for every virus!
Vitamix is for every infection!
Vitamix is free of side effects.
Vitamix is faster than antibiotics.
Vitamix is for every contagious disease!
Vitamix is for mastitis.
Vitamix is for scours!
Vitamix costs less than antibiotics.

Vitamix is for when your cow or calf is off feed!
Vitamix is for anything one animal can catch from another.
Vitamix is for dairymen who want to stay in business!!
Vitamix is for when you need a miracle.

If you could find a better procedure for your cows and calves, I would buy it for you. One gallon of Vitamix is typically enough for about 60 cases of calf scours and it costs only $60.00 (when you get it by the five gallon bucket).

One gallon of Vitamix is typically enough for about 8 cases of mastitis ($7.50 per cow). You save five days milk when you use Vitamix instead of antibiotics.

You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix.

Are you going to just sit there waiting for a miracle? Or, are you going to call Frank and get some Vitamix? You will get the Vitamix for sure!!! Keep Vitamix on hand.

The cows and calves you save will be your own.
